Four from West in cabinet

Grit team mixes old and new

OTTAWA (CP) — Allan MacEachen, 58, was sworn in Monday as finance minister in the new Liberal cabinet, taking on the difficult chore of dealing with the country's chronic inflation, unemployment and other economic woes.

The long-serving Cape Breton Liberal headed a list of 33 ministers unveiled as Pierre Trudeau was sworn in again as prime minister by Gov.-Gen. Ed Schreyer in a pomp-filled ceremony at Government House.

Key ministers in the list included Mark MacGuigan, 49, of Windsor, as minister of external affairs, fellow Windsor MP Herb Gray as minister of industry, trade and commerce and Marc Lalonde, 50, as minister of energy.

Jean-Luc Pepin, 55, was named minister of transport and Maurice Lamontagne, 60, of Quebec City, was appointed minister of defence.

Trudeau rounded out the economic portfolios in the cabinet with a list of newcomers including Donald Johnston, 43, of Montreal, into the purse-strings-controlling job as president of the treasury board and Ed Lumley, 40, a small businessman and former mayor of Cornwall, as minister responsible for trade.

Charles Lapointe, 35, from the Quebec City riding of Charlevoix, was named to the cabinet for the first time as minister of small business and Judy Erola, a broadcaster from the nickel-mining city of Sudbury, was named minister responsible for mines.

Senator Bud Olson of Alberta, once a Liberal minister of Agriculture, was named as the cabinet representative for that province as minister of economic development.

Pierre Bussieres, from the Quebec City-area riding of Charlesbourg, will be minister of state for finance — in fact an assistant to MacEachen — and Pierre De Bane will be minister of regional economic expansion.

Mugabe wins majority

Times News Services

SALISBURY — Marxist-leaning guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe has won an absolute majority in Rhodesia's independence elections, authoritative sources said today.

Mugabe had taken a strong lead from the start of voting tabulation.

A group of journalists allowed inside one of the eight provincial election centers said Mugabe appeared to have taken about 29,000 of the first 40,000.

Sources among the Commonwealth observers said the trend elsewhere in the country also seemed to be running in his favor.

Election officials said it would take until midnight for all the votes to be counted and the actual results would be kept secret until a formal announcement Tuesday morning.

The counting of the votes from the three-day election came amid fears that new fighting could result if the voting failed to produce a clear winner, as predicted.

Mugabe, confident that his party has won the greatest share of the 100-seat parliament, said Sunday British governor Lord Soames must pick him to form a government and then help to carry out the task.

Mugabe's prediction of victory came just as two key groups of foreign election observers said the three-day election that ended Friday was free and fair and adequate for determining the wishes of the black majority.

The two groups were a team of observers dispatched by British Commonwealth countries and a group of British government appointees.

But former Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa — a Mugabe foe — called the election a fraud because of alleged intimidation of voters, and said he reserved the right to reject the outcome. He was supported in his charges by white minority leader Ian Smith's Rhodesian Front Party.

Afghan battles escalate

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Soviet and Afghan troops backed by tanks and MiG fighters have mounted full-scale attacks on Moslem rebel positions in Afghanistan, a guerrilla spokesman said today.

The Soviet action, which was confirmed by Pakistani government officials in Islamabad, could be a prelude to an expected spring offensive by the Russians and loyal Afghan troops.

The spokesman for the Islamic Alliance for the Liberation of Afghanistan, a union of six rebel groups, reported the heaviest fighting was in the eastern province of Kunar, on the border with Pakistan.

He said the Soviet forces were using up to 200 tanks and 65 aircraft in the Kunar fighting alone.

After 7 years of captivity, kidnapped boy returns

By LARRY STAMMER
Los Angeles Times

UKIAH, Calif. — Two boys kidnapped seven years and 200 miles apart were found together in this Northern California town and reunited on Sunday with their joyful parents.

Police arrested Kenneth Eugene Parnell, 48, a night clerk at a hotel here, for investigation of kidnapping in the abduction of Steven Stayner, 14, and Timmy Lee White, 5.

Both kidnapping victims were in good physical shape.

Stayner, described now as a "healthy, intelligent, strapping young man," was 7 years old when he disappeared Dec. 7, 1972, while walking home from school in Merced, 200 miles south of here in the San Joaquin Valley.

Timmy, a blond, freckled-faced kindergarten pupil, vanished on Valentine's Day last month as he walked from Ukiah's Yokayo Elementary School to his babysitter three blocks away.

Until police found them on a downtown street shortly before midnight Saturday, the two boys had been living with Parnell in a cabin near the coastal hamlet of Manchester, about 45 miles southwest of here, authorities said.

Earlier Saturday, they had walked and hitchhiked to Ukiah in the rain because Stayner felt sorry for Timmy, who had been crying for his parents and sister.

At first, Stayner tried to take Timmy to his babysitter but found no one at home. Then, because the teen-ager wasn't sure Timmy knew where he lived, he took the boy to the police station and told him to go inside.

Timmy was crying when he peeked in the front door of the station but ran when he saw that an officer had seen him.

Minutes later, Officer Russell Van Voorhis stopped Stayner and his small charge for questioning because of the lateness of the hour and their age.

Since Valentine's Day, the best overtime efforts of Ukiah's 22-member police department had failed to find Timmy, so when the boy said he was "Timmy White" Van Voorhis immediately recognized the name.

"We've been looking all over for you," the officer said, sweeping Timmy up in his arms.

Questioned at the police station, Stayner said he also had been kidnapped, and he remembered his name and hometown.

"I brought in Timmy because I didn't like what was happening," Stayner told a press conference here Sunday. "It happened to me and I just didn't want to see it happen to somebody else."

Interest relief hinted

TORONTO (CP) — A number of Liberal MPs are saying a top priority of the new federal government will be to ease the mortgage squeeze threatening thousands of Canadian homeowners, according to the Star.

The newspaper says many of the 200,000 Canadian homeowners renewing mortgages this year will face payment problems because interest rates have climbed five per cent in the last five years.

The Star says Windsor, Ont., MP Herb Gray, a strong candidate for the Liberal cabinet, advises homeowners renewing their mortgages this month to take only a one-year mortgage and wait until Ottawa tackles the interest-rate problem.

He hinted that the Liberals are looking at several options to help beleaguered homeowners.

British heir lacks hair

LONDON (UPI) — The man who would be king may be going bald.

The Sun, London's largest circulation daily newspaper, said the 31-year-old heir to the British throne showed the increasing size of his bald spot as he bent over a microscope at the opening of a forensic science laboratory over the weekend.

The tabloid said he finally admitted jokingly that he is getting a bit thin on top.

Marguerite the best: Elworthy

The head of the B.C. Steamship Corporation insisted today that the Princess Marguerite is the best ship for the Victoria-Seattle run this summer.

In an interview today with the Times, Arthur Elworthy said:

"I know she can operate. I don't know that she will operate. The minister keeps saying she's not going to, so I don't know. They don't tell me.

"They're not talking to us at all. The minister says it's dead, it's finished. They haven't told me. I just read the paper."

The provincial government has announced the Marguerite will be replaced when the run starts in mid-May by the ferry Queen of Prince Rupert.

And Transport Minister Alex Fraser again confirmed today that the government will not change its mind about the Marguerite.

He said the government has been told the vessel is not safe and that there is a potential fire hazard.

"I have told the directors that I am the spokesman for the steamship company and I say she won't run," Fraser repeated.

But Elworthy said the Marguerite is safe. She has Canadian Coast Guard and U.S. clearance and Lloyd's of London said she is seaworthy. With a refit she would be capable of sailing for several more years, he said.

Elworthy said the government was misled about the Rupert.

"They were told the Rupert could do 18 knots, which she cannot."

Her best speed is 15 knots, four knots slower than the Marguerite. At 16 knots the Rupert starts to shake terribly, he said.

"The Rupert is going to be completely useless on the Seattle run."

It will cost money to refit the Marguerite for the Seattle run, but it might be less than the bill for preparing the Queen of Prince Rupert.

The jetfoil mentioned as an auxiliary to the new ferry is a good idea, Elworthy said, but the fare may have to be prohibitively expensive.

"What nobody is saying about the jetfoil is what they're going to charge. I've heard it's going to be $60 on the jetfoil. I'm wondering how many people are going to pay $60 return."

Roe fishing starts with dispute

By MIKE HUGHES

The game of brinkmanship over the minimum guaranteed price fishing companies will pay for roe herring is under way with this year's season hanging in the balance.

On Sunday, members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union and the Native Brotherhood of B.C. voted 90 per cent not to fish for the prices being offered.

(Herring fishermen blame Ottawa, page 8)

The two unions represent an estimated 30 per cent of the roe herring fleet and have rejected an offer of $640 a ton for gillnet-caught herring and $325 a ton for seine-caught herring.

The unions want $1,400 a ton for gilnets and $850 a ton for the seines.

A spokesman for the Fisheries Association of B.C., which represents 14 fishing companies, said today there has not yet been any official strike notice served by the unions.

Meanwhile, the federal fisheries department has opened the season for gillnets in two locations on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

A fisheries spokesman said today about 70 boats are fishing in Esperanza Inlet out of about 120 boats in the area. The gillnets are averaging three to five tons a boat, he said.

There are about 60 gillnetters in the Winter Harbor area, which was opened this morning, and 25 are fishing, he said.

There were rumors, but no confirmed reports, that some of the vessels fishing are union boats. The rest are independents, working for co-operatives or companies which don't belong to the fisheries association.

There are 1,550 licensed roe herring fishermen, 250 seiners and 1,300 gillnetters.

Jerry Spitz, president of the fisheries association, said today if an agreement on roe price isn't reached this week "we might as well forget about it.

"The odds are there won't be a fishery."

No further talks are scheduled with the unions.

Spitz said the main problem is that the unions don't believe the companies' statements on the status of the roe market in Japan.

"They feel it is just a big plot, that the companies are trying to pull the wool over their eyes."

Spitz said the companies can't offer any more for the herring because even at their final offer they would be taking a loss in order to build up a decimated Japanese market.

Last year, Japanese consumers balked at buying roe because of high prices and a fear that hydrogen peroxide used to bleach the roe causes cancer.

The union says gouging and price fixing by Japanese companies and not fishermen's demands are to blame for last year's unpalatable $45-a-pound price for the eggs.

Bill Procopation, business agent for the United Fishermen, said the union is setting up information picket lines to stop production of herring.

But he said the union will not attempt to close down plant operations handling other species of fish and does not want to put shoreworkers out of work.

The youth said he had planned for a week and a half to return Timmy to Ukiah but had been delayed because of bad weather.

Police arrested Parnell early Sunday morning at the hotel where he worked. The booking record listed Parnell as single and gave his birthplace as Amarillo, Texas.

Shortly before Parnell's arrest, an officer called James and Angie White and told a sleepy Mrs. White that there was a small boy at the station who said his name was Timmy and he was lost.

The White's reunion with Timmy came minutes later. They found the boy dazed and untalkative, at first, but after Mrs. White held him in her arms for 15 or 20 minutes, he brightened and asked if his sister, Nicole, 6, had lost a tooth.

Then, he wanted to know how his cat was, and after that, according to his stepfather, Timmy was soon chatting with Nicole.

"They had changed his name," White related. "They cut his hair and dyed it. He said wild pigs had lived around where he had stayed and they had an outdoor shower.

"He said the man had bought him toy soldiers and crayons and a toy canoe. Once the man spanked him, but he wasn't mean."

White said Timmy had been crying to go home.

"There's nothing wrong with him," White said. "He's physically fine. We went to a hospital and checked him out. No type of sexual molestation. The man just wanted boys.

"We feel very lucky. That's for sure."

It was about 3 a.m. Sunday when Merced police woke up Delbert and Kay Stayner, ending years of hoping against hope that their missing son, Steven, was alive.

"Is he alive?" they asked the officer.

"He sure is," the policeman said.

"With that," Stayner said, "both of us started crying. I think the police officer thought we were going to hug him to death."

The 46-year-old Stayner, a maintenance mechanic for a canning company, and his wife have five children. Their son Steven is the third born.

"My wife never gave up hope," the elder Stayner said Sunday. "I weakened about two years ago, but I still had a little hope. The earth just swallowed him up."

Mrs. Stayner told an interviewer, "I felt when he was old enough that he would find his way home. We never really gave up hope on Steve.

Young Stayner recalled in Sunday's press conference that he was walking home from school when a man asked him if he wanted to donate anything to a church.

"I said my mother might," Stayner recalled, and he accepted the offer of a ride and got in the man's car to go home.

Instead of stopping, Stayner said, the man drove past his house and kept going. Later, according to Merced Police Chief Harold Kulbeth, the man told Steven that a court had awarded him custody of the boy.

After his abduction, according to Mendocino County District Attorney Joe Allen, Stayner tried to get in touch with his parents by telephone but apparently he was not sophisticated enough to reach the information operator.

Eventually, Allen said, a "close relationship" developed between Steven and his kidnapper. The district attorney said, "Apparently the man was kind to him and treated him decently. At some point, he decided to stick with what he had."

But, Allen said, when Timmy was brought to the Manchester cabin Steven became concerned about the small boy.

"...He realized it was not good for Timmy to be there."

As for the motive of the man accused of the two abductions, Allen said, "It seems he wanted to build a family for himself without going to the trouble of getting married."

Saanich police busy

Saanich police were kept busy Sunday with two disputes involving weapons.

In the first weapon incident, police were called to a family dispute in an apartment at 3255 Cook Street when a woman told them her husband had a rifle.

Police quickly cordoned off the area but were unable to contact the man because there was no phone in the apartment.

The Emergency Response Team — a group of five officers trained in specialized weapons and tactics specifically for unusual situations — was called out.

After almost four hours the man let police in.

No ammunition was found and no charges will be laid.

The second weapon incident sent officers to the Ten Mile Point area after a report a 17-year-old youth was holed up in his house after threatening his parents with what was believed to be a rifle.

He was arrested and a pellet rifle was seized.

The youth later appeared before a justice of the peace and was remanded in custody for psychiatric evaluation.

He is to appear in court on Wednesday on charges of pointing a firearm, possession of an offensive weapon and unlawfully being near a dwelling house at night.

Pension fund liabilities top $1B

The B.C. government's pension plans for civil servants and teachers have unfunded liabilities of more than $1 billion, says provincial superannuation commissioner Jim Reid.

Government accountants are closely watching the growing shortfall between investments in three major pension funds and the actual money needed to meet long-term benefit commitments for 137,000 teachers and public servants.

Affected are the public service superannuation fund with a $190.3 milliin unfunded liability according to 1978-1979 figures; the municipal employees pension plan with $272 million in unfunded liability assessed to 1976 and the teachers' pension fund with $547.6 million in unfunded liability at last count.

"Something will be done this year," said a high-ranking government official who declined to be identified.

The shortfall, described as unfunded liability by accountants, has grown to well over $1 billion today from $883 million three years ago.

Reid says the total has escalated mainly because of an increase in unfunded liability in the teachers' pension scheme.

The problem was acknowledged at an open cabinet meeting in Delta, in October, 1977, by then Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy. The government was also told the previous year that corrective action should be taken promptly.

"The plans do not represent a strong financial picture," one San Francisco pensions analyst said.

"The quicker the gap grows between the investments and your committed benefits the closer you get to the point where money coming in today goes out the other door on the same day in payment to retired employees."

Geoffrey Calvert, a Victoria pensions expert and former consultant for the U.S. federal social security service, said B.C. is not as badly off as some other provinces.

"By comparison, B.C. has done a creditable job in the past," he said. "But it's been caught by inflation."

Opposition pension critic Dennis Cocke (NDP — New Westminster) says the origin of the problem is the former W. A. C. Bennett government's practice of placing employee pension money in low-yield B.C. Hydro bonds.

Truckers cool off over ID badges

BURNABY (CP) — Union employees at the Freightliner of Canada Ltd. truck plant in this Vancouver suburb decided Sunday night to endorse a Labor Relations Board decision to cool down the fight over identification badges and return to work.

A spokesman for the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers said 400 union members agreed to wear identification badges until the issue can be decided through a grievance procedure.

The move followed a weekend LRB decision to ban picketing that closed the plant last week.

IF BIRDS were people then these two long-stemmed pink flamingoes now gracing the Crystal Garden would undoubtedly be chorus line material. Elegeant, haughty birds, brought here from the San Diego zoo, will go on public view March 28 when renovated facility opens its doors.

Midwives on the job breaking law

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 100 practising midwives in B.C. are breaking the law every time they deliver a baby, a conference on the ~~skill~~ was told here.

In B.C., only physicians are permitted to deliver babies and physicians in the home have to justify the case as exceptional or face loss of hospital privileges.

In most other countries, midwives are sanctioned and receive training and encouragement.

In Canada, midwives perform as many as 10 per cent of all births in some regions — all illegal.

A Victoria delegate, Luba Lyons, 31, a lay midwife for seven years and one of about 200 people attending the conference, described the paranoia and rewards of her profession.

"For six months we assumed our phones were being tapped. We had conversations like this:

'Well, Sally Smith is having a party.

'Oh, really. How many people are there?

'Oh, I'd say about four, and they're coming every seven minutes.'"

Lyons said she stopped delivering babies about three years ago, partly because she feared harassment. But she still coaches mothers through labor in hospital and is saddened by the incompleteness of the experience in a hospital delivery.

Karen May, the vice-president of the Maternal Health Society and founding member of the Campaign Association for the Legalization of Midwifery, outlined in an interview the case for midwifery and home birthing.

May said that experience in other countries shows that when high-risk patients are screened out, home births are as safe as hospital deliveries.

They offer the medical advantage of lower cross-infections between infants and the psychological advantages of a familiar environment.

Midwives trained to high standards as they are in Britain and their European countries are more competent to deal with normal and even abnormal deliveries than most general practitioners, May said.

17-year-old girl placed in hotel

SURREY (CP) — A former Surrey mayor says the B.C. human resources ministry placed a 17-year-old girl in a Delta hotel and left her unsupervised for eight days before police arrested her after complaints she was drinking.

Bill Vogel, now a member of Surrey's Community Resources Society, wants the government to investigate why the girl was not placed in the society's emergency shelter which is designed to handle such cases and had empty beds at the time.

"I'm appalled that social workers would put an unsupervised teenager into a hotel room," Vogel said in an interview.

"We know there was drinking going on. She could have been raped and strangled."

The society is locked in a bitter dispute with human resources over getting sufficient money to keep the shelter operating this year.

Vogel said the episode proves why the shelter should exist. The society has given human resources until today to approve a $78,000 budget or its workers will be laid off and the shelter closed.

"The reason we are sticking to our guns and insisting they give us enough money to operate the shelter properly is that we can guarantee nothing like this could happen here," he said.

Rammed bridge reopens

VANCOUVER (UPC) — The rebuilt Canadian National Railways bridge spanning Vancouver's Second Narrows is expected to reopen late Monday, nearly four months after being rammed by a freight[illegible] CN spokesman said Sunday.

Spokesman Al Menard said a train loaded with phosphate rock was scheduled to cross the bridge early Monday but delays in lowering the bridge's centre span have postponed the reopening.

Menard said the cost of bridge repairs exceeded $6 million.

IT'S WORKING. DON'T STOP NOW.

With your help, we have reduced the possibility of electricity shortages on Vancouver Island this winter. But the basic problem is still with us. That means we have to keep working together, every day.

Thanks to your help.

The cold weather has passed and with it, the immediate possibility of electricity shortages this winter. The combined efforts of Island residents—particularly during the daily 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. peak use times—contributed to Hydro's ability to supply electric service without major interruptions. Even though the demand for electricity had been increased by the addition of 5600 new customers during the past year, the needs of all residential users were met—a direct result of all of us working together.

Because the basic problem still exists, the need for conservation remains.

As explained in previous messages, Vancouver Island is out-growing its supply of electrical energy.

At the moment, Hydro is moving to solve this problem through the installation of two additional submarine cables from Cheekye to Dunsmuir, but the first of these lines cannot be put into service before 1983 at the earliest.

The need for continuing conservation efforts is still with us, and will become even more critical next winter. Developing wise conservation habits and making your home more energy efficient now, can help alleviate possibie shortages in the winters to come.

Hydro can help. Just ask.

The emphasis this winter has been on reducing demand on the electric system during the daily 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. peak hours. But energy conservation should be practiced year round. It simply means using energy wisely. By eliminating waste, not only can you save precious energy, you can save money as well. Hydro can help you do both with the Homeowner's Checklist of Energy Savings. This free booklet tells you where to look for possible sources of energy waste all around the home, and it offers valuable suggestions to help you correct these problems. It's a good way to start making your home more energy efficient—a positive contribution towards reducing your own future energy requirements.

For the Homeowner's Checklist, or other ideas on energy conservation, call us at your nearest Hydro office. With your continuing co-operation, we'll solve the Island's electricity supply problem.

B.C.HYDRO

Bugging the forests

If insects are going to destroy the trees anyway, then why not harvest them. That's the rationale presented by the B.C. Forest Service when it announced 500,000 acres of lodgepole pine would be cut in the Nelson area to save comercially valuable timber that would soon be infested by the mountain pine beetle. But subsequent research suggests that this is as much a salvage operation to compensate for a lack of forest management as it is a scheme to feed sawmills rather than beetles.

It turns out that this beetle has a long association with lodgepole pine; its presence has been well documented. The beetle generally attacks stagnant stands of pine 80 years of age and older. Because its eating habits are predictable, it can actually enhance forest management by natually harvesting stands of little economic or wildlife value. Furthermore, because the beetle survives on older trees, its numbers can be contained and managed.

Lodgepole pine is a species which grows at higher elevations. Often access to it is difficult and expensive. For years these stands have been ignored by the Forest Service and the industry in favor of more lucrative stands at lower elevations. Now, when the more traditional timber supply in the Nelson area is rapidly disappearing, the mountain pine beetle is held out as the number one threat to the area's future timber supplies.

Although these half million acres have not been managed, a large clear-cutting salvage operation is only one of a long list of management options available to control the beetle. It may be the most expedient. Another option, however, could see sections of the forest cut and renewed while other sections were used to control the beetle. Clear-cutting will delay but not prevent the resurgence later of the beetle.

The Nelson situation is symptomatic of the lack of innovative, comprehensive forest management — management that should strive to preserve and enhance stable employment opportunities in one of the best renewable resources available to British Columbians.

The Social Credit government gave notice in Friday's Throne Speech that more funds would be released for forest research and reforestration programs. Considering that the provincial government receives some $400 million annually from the forest industry and returns only $30 million in reforestration and research programs, British Columbia can well afford to contribute more to the resource backbone of its economy.

A matter of routine

The frightening thing about the circulation of the names of allegedly "subversive" Canadians to four international intelligence agencies in 1971 is that it was all done as a matter of routine.

An edited version of testimony given to the MacDonald Commission investigating the RCMP revealed that former solicitor general Jean-Pierre Goyer said it was a matter of routine for Canada to exchange with friendly nations information on international security threats.

The information involved about 100 names of people allegedly in sympathy with revolutionary causes. According to Goyer, some names ended up on the blacklist as a result of a request from the Privy Council for security services to find out who was leaking government information to the public.

The internal security of any nation during a time of crisis can depend on the vigilence of its security forces. And during the period of the October Crisis in the early 1970s there was a perceived threat in some quarters.

But while most people would expect the government and its agents to indulge in extraordinary measures such as surveillance on alleged trouble-makers, nobody could reasonably condon the circulation of names of possible subversives virtually worldwide.

Legal action by Canadian authorities apparently was never taken against anyone. But although presumably innocent of any wrongdoing, their names were passed on to foreign authorities to be used for purposes that can only be speculated about.

Even in the murky world of counter-intelligence, security forces must protect the civil rights of innocent people. It is startling to discover those rights can be so easily dismissed through routine practices.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

No parallel with Laurier

Allan Fotheringham, my brilliant young friend and Canada's loveable iconoclast, is like a traveler in an antique land gazing at the sphinx and trying to guess its secret. The sphinx, of course, is Pierre Trudeau, and Fotheringham has finally solved the great mystery of national politics, at least to his own satisfaction.

Oddly enough, he stumbled on the answer by re-reading (for lack of anything better on a campaign aircraft) a book I once wrote about the nation's prime ministers. There he discovered a curious parallel that explained everything — Trudeau was only Wilfrid Laurier reincarnated. Eureka! But Fotheringham is quite wrong, his parallel false, his hopes vain.

Election risks

Nevertheless, his nostalgic exercise is useful because it vividly illuminates the risks emerging from the recent election. And the worst risk of all is that the sphinx may have no secret, no solutions, no workable policies.

Fotheringham should have read a different book. In Trudeau's masterwork, disarmingly titled Federalism and the French Canadians, he reveals the inner doctrine that he has applied to government, with interesting results. Thus:

"The only constant factor to be found in my thinking over the years has been opposition to accepted opinions . . . I have never been able to accept any discipline except that which I impose on myself . . . In the art of living as in the art of loving or of governing — it is the same — I found it unacceptable that others should claim to know better than I what was good for me. Consequently I found tyranny completely intolerable."

Let the bewildered citizen ponder these words. Let Trudeau ponder them, too. For after the exclusion of his government from Manitoba westward he must accept disciplines imposed not by himself but by the voters.

As he examines the distorted election map he must even suspect that others may possibly know better than he what is good for him and the nation. The tyranny of political arithmetic has caught up with him in the hour of his triumph. And herein lies the risk for all of us.

Certainly there is a surface parallel between Trudeau and his illustrious French Canadian predecessor but there is a wider diversity, an unbridgeable gap of character and circumstance, well worth considering in our latest dilemma.

Only by the accident of birth in Quebec have the two men anything in common. Trudeau was the son of rich parents and raised in the luxury of Montreal. Laurier was the son of poor parents and his bedroom, in the little house at the village of St. Lin, is hardly bigger than a clothes closet.

Trudeau inherited the English language from a mother of Scottish descent. Laurier had to learn it as a boarder in a Presbyterian home and never lost the flavor of his French accent.

Trudeau is an athlete. Laurier was too frail for outdoor sports and seemed unlikely to live long. Trudeau flashed into politics like a visitor from outer space. Laurier climbed slowly from the back bench with frequent electoral defeats.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER
. . .leader in happier times

It is in their governing methods, above all their human manners, that the two men differ most.

Trudeau imagined at the start that he could run a kind of presidential government by flow charts, schedules and hired expertise but their product is a financial and economic botch. Laurier, also an inefficient housekeeper, ran his governments like a family household of eccentric relatives.

No colleague ever understood Trudeau's remote and luminious mind. No recruit of talent was attracted into his cabinet. He commanded awe but not affection. Laurier commanded both. To his colleagues he was father, confessor and friend. He won three elections by his own magnetism (not without some pretty cynical footwork) and his sunny presence melted his opposition.

After the emotional intoxication of 1968 Trudeau won three more elections mainly because the alternatives looked worse.

Some of the glowing Laurier myth was as false as Fotheringham's parallel. Even today many Liberal mythologists still believe that Laurier made the big Canadian boom of the early twentieth century. In fact, that Happy Time came from a world boom and it was brief, ending in a world war.

The false parallel is not confined to personalities and that is why it could mislead us in our immediate affairs.

Trudeau is governing in a worldwide Unhappy Time, unimaginable to Laurier. In his days the world "inflation" had not entered the public lexicon. The Gross National Product, the Keynesian theory and the welfare state had not been invented. Nor had the nuclear bomb that changed the whole course of human events.

The two-party system was still intact and, with Fielding beside him, Laurier maintained the unwritten coalition that alone can govern successfully. Trudeau must govern in a three-party system, and after John Turner's departure, did not seriously seek an English-speaking partner. The essential coalition has disappeared, through bad luck and worse mismanagement.

Less appealing

However Trudeau's success is weighed against his failure it is clear that his problem, and the nation's, is incomparably more difficult than any faced by Laurier, in whose Happy Time no Rene Levesque had appeared to threaten national suicide. As he tries to forestall it, Trudeau becomes a figure in our history more important, though less appealing, than Laurier.

That is where the Laurier-Trudeau fable breaks down and where the secret of the sphinx, if any, becomes so vital to us all. It should not be forgotten, either, that Laurier, despite his wizadry, ended in ruin and heartbreak. Trudeau's real test has yet to come, and every sane citizen must hope that it will have a far different ending.

Quick demise

The Conservative party should write a book on how to commit political suicide. They couldn't have planned it better.

When Joe Clark was first elected as party leader, there was internal bickering, resignations, and at least one notable defection. One would have thought that the first priority would be to stand behind their leader once he had been elected.

Even John Diefenbaker, whom I consider one the great Canadians of all time, did a great disservice to the party when he refused to endorse Clark at the outset.

But they did get their act together for a while, and with a lot of help from the anti-Trudeau feeling in the country, got themselves elected with a minority.

But Mr. Clark immediately proclaimed that he would govern as though he had a majority. Now anyone with a grain of sense knows that no minority government can possibly last for any length of time without making some concessions, some compromises, with the opposition parties.

And so their demise came quickly.

Even so, knowing full well that they were 20 points down in the polls, and knowing full well that their oil pricing policies were unpopular with a great many Canadians, they barged straight ahead vowing that they would bring down the same budget if they were elected.

And now we read that Joe Clark had other options when the budget was defeated — but chose instead to accept some unbelievably bad advice about the chances of re-election.

Then there was the spectacle of an almost complete lack of support in the campaign by the Tory premiers. Had Premier Davis campaigned vigorously on Clark's behalf in Ontario, for example, the results could very well have been different.

If nothing else, the ridiculous situation which we now find ourselves in, where the west has no representation in the majority party, makes it all the more obvious that our whole parliamentary system needs some major surgery. — O. B. Fox, 306-820 Craigflower Road.

Fight goes on

You may recall that the Cadboro Bay Residents Association initiated court action to overturn the Minnie Mountain land use contract in the fall of 1978. The main issue before the B.C. Supreme Court was the eligibility of one of the aldermen of council and whether his vote in favor of the project would be allowed to stand. (The council vote was 5-4 in favour of the project).

The association's contention that the aldermen had a conflict of interest was upheld by the court and the bylaw was quashed. That decision was appealed by both Saanich council and the developer and although the B.C. Court of Appeal found the alderman to be in a conflict of interest, Saanich council and the developer were successful in having the bylaw re-instated. In January, 1980 the resident association tried to have the case heard by the Supreme Court of Canada but permission was not granted.

Some points to note:

1. Both courts ruled that the alderman had a conflict of interest and was disqualified. However this ruling had no effect on the bylaw on which he voted, We see little use in conflict of interest legislation if it can't be applied to quash bylaws.

2. The association's attempt to have the case heard by the Supreme Court of Canada was denied. That court ruled that the conflict of interest legislation was peculiar to B.C and had been dealt with by the B.C. courts. There was no ruling on the merits of the case.

3. The association is perplexed and disturbed by the apparent inequities in the process. If the courts had ruled that there was no conflict of interest, that decision could have been accepted. But the courts were definite that there was a conflict but disagreed on the application of that conflict in light of the Municipal Act. Before this case was started there was case law which made exception to the strict narrow clauses in Section 174, and our case was based on this. Now, because of these recent rulings, no bylaw can be challenged on the grounds of conflict of interest. Even if it can be proven that an alderman voted when he was not legally entitled to do so, no action can be taken that will change his vote, even by the courts.

The association is disappointed to have failed to overturn the bylaw but is determined to continue the fight. The by-law was 'tainted with illegality' yet it has been allowed to stand. The projects lacks legitimacy because it does not have the support of the majority of residents in Cadboro Bay and because it was approved by council under what has turned out to be questionable circumstances. It will be fought on that basis. — R. M. Boss, President, Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association.

Future action

Basically, the mid east problems aren't Russia vs America or communism vs capitalism, but are fights between nationalism and imperialism.

America with 550,000 troops couldn't quell North Vietnamese nationalism.

The Russians will not be able to quell Afghanistan nationalism with a mere 100,000 troops, but will have to build up to at least the strength of the Americans in the Vietnam war, and then may lose.

Neither Russia or America would have an easy time "freeing" the Yogoslavs from their "misguided" chosen nationalism.

Both Rusia and America are the new national imperialists, operating under the guise of their different political righteousnesses.

If the U.N. commission under Waldheim could establish on a world wide scale that tyrants and despots are answerable to the world at large, for any future wrong actions, the discomfort of the U.S.A embassy hostages would be an immensely worthwhile sacrifice.

If judged guilty, the Shah should be stripped of unlawful wealth and quietly exiled with a comfortable allowance, without further acrimony. A quiet acquiesance by the Shah to such a fate would help establish a worthwhile precedent and make his life and living worth while.

The important thing to accept is that such rulings must be applicable only to future actions; or the super powers would immediately sabotage the concept, as they cannot (unless defeated in war) put themselves in the position of accepting guilt for past actions.

Any attempt to make a retroactive agreement to open these cans of worms, which for all practical purposes are in the past, would be counter productive and cause a world war. Peace is to be found in reasonable future action — not the past. — Vern Cragg, 1761 Mackenzie Ave.

No-party system

Regarding the recent federal election and its obvious inability to cure the frustrations and alienations of the voters due to the polarization of parties:

It has been suggested that altering the electoral system by the adoption of some form of proportional representation might help by spreading party MPs more evenly across the political spectrum. The appointment of a few Liberal senators or envoys to investigate the causes of western alienation would still not alter the mind set of the eastern Liberals with its failure to understand the Western mind set.

It is suggested that what is really on trial is the party system itself which tends to accentuate ideological differences, provide means for economic extremism and, as Trudeau said, give virtual dictatorial powers to a few.

During the crises of the 1930s depression and the last war, Britian successfuly formed a national government with party politics set aside. Surely Canada is a nation in crisis needing a similar system.

National government is not one-party government. It is no-party government with MPs elected by proportional representation so having more than 50 per cent of the votes each. Opposing views would be provided by meaningful debate with ministers to be elected by all MPs and not by a few as at present, with the resultant hope of really beginning to solve problems. — H. S. Thuillier, 2424 Beach Drive.

Save the trees

It is heartening to see the large number of people trying to save oil by heating their homes with wood. However, the practice of allowing the dead trees to be removed from muncipal parks for such purposes should be stopped immediately except where the trees might be threatening to people in playgrounds or parking lots.

Dead trees are homes to many animals that cannot survive without them, such as woodpeckers and owls. Any evening now one can go to Mt. Douglas at dusk and hear screech owls calling. They will become a rare bird if the present rate of destruction of dead trees continues. — J. B. Foster, Co-ordinator, Ecological Reserves Unit, Ministry of Lands, Parks and Housing.

Victoria Landmarks

Robert Melrose, reaching this area in 1853, spent the rest of his life at or near Craigflower.

The original of his laconic, informative diary (August, 1852 - July, 1857) is a prized possession of our Provincial Archives. Its text, edited and annotated by Dr. Kaye Lamb, appeared in the April, July, and October numbers of the 1943 British Columbia Historical Quarterly (Vol. VII.

Mr. and Mrs. Melrose came here on the Norman Morison. The two births, one baptism, and three deaths occurring on the voyage via the Horn are recorded in the diary. So is the stormy weather near the end of the voyage when the ship was twice blown out to sea. But January 15 was "Fine Day. Sailed up the Sound very slow."

At Craigflower, the diary continued loconic, gave weather and farming details, recorded the movements of naval and coastal ships, the number of sheep, pigs and cattle killed for food, the arrival of extra provisions from Nisqually. (Our area's farms could not supply enough food for local and naval needs).

The diary's best known comment is probably its January 1, 1854, footnote that "— it would almost take a line of packet ships, running regular between here, and San Francisco to supply this island with grog."

Heady stuff

A man who seems to be a relic of the 60's, unkempt and personsute, sits atop a waste-disposal receptacle (once the trash can) on the corner of Connecticut Avenue and 17th Street in the nation's capital, a stoned throw from the Washington bureau of The New York Times. In front of him is a card-table laden with small pipes, hoses, papers and other paraphernalia associated with the use of the cannabis plant.

"Our prices are lower, so you can get higher," he calls out in a rasping, stentorian voice (from Stentor, the herald with the loud voice in the Iliad). Then he uses the slogan I like best: "Everything you need for the head of the house."

That double meaning tells a lot about the transformation of "head." Time was, the main meaning of "head" was as leader, or chief — "head of the house," or "head of the class." The orginal meaning, as the part of the body above the neck, always remained in metaphoric use — from "head over heels" and "lose your head" to "get this through your head" — but "the head" was most often taken to be "the boss," and rarely substituted for "the mind." (On deep sea vessels, lavatories were often placed near the bulkhead, and came to be known as "the heads," but that and the unrelated use of the word as sexual slang are tangents we need not follow.)

Then came the drug culture, and "head" was its key word. "Hopheads" took dope; "potheads" smoked marijuana; "acid heads" dropped LSD. A place where the accouterments of drugtaking were sold was called a "head shop." Singers urged listeners to "get your head together," and people who liked to pick up drug-culture lingo without necessarily participating talked of "where my head is at."

In that sense, the head was a personal citadel — a physical fortress, to guard the self from the world. The head implied feeling, in contrast to the mind, which usually connoted thought. The head was a fragile, sometimes aching, often enchanted, thing; in contrast, the mind was disciplined, or something one was forced to make up. In this period, "hardheaded" fell into disuse, replaced by "tough-minded."

The science of linguistics properly views all hunches with suspicion, but I have a hunch that the use of "head" to mean "citadel of awareness" is declining in common parlance, which could signal a general decline of self-indulgent inwardness. That's cause for optimism; I would hate to think of a new decade's writers and academics electing to pursue the life of the head.

State of the Art

"You an inventor, or what?" The news clerk (formerly copy boy) has been wondering why, in the mail he sorts, I have been getting so many letters from patent attorneys.

The reason is a query in this space a while ago about "state of the art," a fashionable phrase applied to everything from aircraft design to cheating at cards.

Robert Sanborn of Vineyard Haven, Mass., a retired patent attorney, directs us to the "art" part of the phrase in Article I, Section 8 of the United States Constitution: "The Congress shall have power . . . to promote the progress of science and useful arts . . . " Patent law describes existing technology as "prior art." That's close to "state of the art," but no cigar.

A chemist was also helpful. "Back in antiquity," writes Robert Rabinowitz of Norwich, N.Y., "when physicians really wrote prescriptions in Latin, and pharmacists actually compounded them, there were two related directions in common use.

"One was 'Fiat secundum artis regulas,' or, 'Let it be made according to the rules of the art,' and the other was the terse 'secundum artem,' or, 'according to the art.' In this way, the pharmacist was directed to use his skill, knowledge and judgment to produce an elegant dosage in a manner reflecting the 'state of the art.' "

That comes closer than ever, but we still have no "first use" of the phrase "state of the art," and nobody will have to pay a psychic income tax.

We are rewarded with this bit of serendipity, however: Mr. Rabinowitz, who describes himself as "an explosive chemist," notes that a professional organization, the American Oil Chemists Society, is so named because of its interest in animal and vegetable oils, and has nothing to do with petroleum derivatives; its members were willing to risk confusion with petroleum chemists because they did not want to belong to an organization called "The American Fat Chemists Society."

O Solecism Mio

"Horatio at the bridge" was referred to in this space recently; nine readers pointed out that the name of the man I had in mind is "Horatius."

Next, Shakespeare's Hamlet was misquoted as having said, "How stale, weary, flat and unprofitable are all the uses of this world!" 'Twas an unweeded garden, switching "stale" and "weary." Lyris Hyatt of Bryn Athyn, Pa. — no Y's guy, she — explains that "part of the charm of Shakespeare's line is its neat phonetic pattern: the front ee in weary, through the vowels in stale and flat, to the open ah in unprofitable." (It was Hamlet's buddy who was named Horatio.)

And then I wrote that astronomers in "pre-Copernican times" thought the earth was flat. (Earth is lowercased, along with sun and moon, unless used in a sentence with other planets, in which case all are uppercased.) Gordon K. Lister of New York writes that I have confused "the sphericity of the earth and the heliocentricity of the solar system." That is confusion on a cosmic scale. It seems that many educated people since Aristotle have believed that the earth was round, and if Copernicus is to be used in an example of revolutionary thinking, it should be because he challenged the common belief that the sun revolved around the earth. Sorry, Nick.

Don't you enjoy watching pretentious writers sprinkle their language with foreign words and phrases and spell them wrong? Je ne sais quois should have been Je ne sais quoi and ridiculing a goof like that is part of the raison d'etre of this column.

In taking the president to task for confusing "flaunt" (to show off) with "flout" (to show contempt for), I wrote: "You can flout convention and you can flout authority, but you cannot use flaunt for flout." That line, suggests Jay D. Shulman of Silver Spring, Md., could have been improved immeasurably by changing the last "can" to "may."

I dealt with redundancies — here we go again — in a piece titled "Play It Again, Sam." (I prefer "title" to "entitle" — jump off the bridge, Horatio.) The allusion was to the line most old-movie fans remember Humphrey Bogart or Ingrid Bergman to have spoken to pianist "Sam," played by Dooley Wilson — a line that has become the touchstone for nostalgiacs. Rounding up the usual subject, John Wicklein of Long Island Public Television sends in the accurate quotation:

ILSA: Play it once, for old time's sake.
ILSA: Play it, Sam — "As Time Goes By."

That was it — no "again" in "Play it again, Sam." But I resist that correction: there is such a thing, in quotation, as "the editing of history." We know that Count Cambronne never said, "The Old Guard dies, but never surrenders" — indeed, the unprintable expletive he really used is known in France as "le mot Cambronne." We know that Herbert Hoover never promised "a chicken in every pot" (that was France's Henry II); that F.D.R. never said, "My fellow immigrants" to the Daughters of the American Revolution, and Richard Nixon never said, "I have a secret plan to end the war." These are all should-be quotations — if the original lacked a sense of history, or was never even spoken, legend does for truth what fact can never do.

I stand uncorrected. Play it again, Sam . . .

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE SITUATION IN CAMBODIA?
NOTHING.
MILLIONS OF CAMBODIANS ARE DYING AND YOU DON'T THINK ABOUT IT?
THAT'S NOT WHERE I'M COMING FROM.
BUT YOU HAVE TO HAVE SOME FEELINGS ABOUT STARVING REFUGEES!
I CAN'T AFFORD TO WORRY ABOUT IT.
YOU DON'T CARE ABOUT DYING WOMEN AND CHILDREN?!
I GOT MY OWN PROBLEMS.
BIG DEAL!
YOU TURKEY! THE GOVERNMENT SET A TRAP TO MAKE US WORRY ABOUT CAMBODIANS!

Cynicism erodes China progress

By JAY MATHEWS
The Washington Post

PEKING — "I get my wages whether I have ideals or not," wrote Peking worker Yu Qiushi, 27. "We have talked of the communist ideal for so long, and yet the country is still so poor and the lives of the people so bitter. We can't eat ideals."

A few years ago Yu might not have dared speak such thoughts. But last month Yu's burst of candor was printed in an official newspaper, the Workers' Daily, as part of an extraordinary effort by China's leaders to confront openly the widespread cynicism that has all but destroyed youthful idealism in China and threatens the country's future prosperity.

Another official newspaper, Shanghai's Wen Hui Bao, gave a brutally accurate summary of what it called a "crisis of confidence," something the Chinese previously have only been talking about among their friends.

"Some people think Marxism-Leninism no longer works," the paper wrote. "They are unwilling to study it any more. In school, political lessons are not well received. Offices and factories often hold political and theoretical study classes in a happy-go-lucky fashion. To them, they are just occasions for killing time."

Conversations with Chinese of different ages and occupations indicate that such cynicism and doubt affect most severely young workers and former students in their 20s and 30s. Many have dead-end factory jobs with little chance of advancment, and long waits for better housing and improved family life. Others wait months or years to be assigned work, only to find that they must accept menial jobs as clerks or maintenance workers or, even worse, leave cities altogether for a rural assignment.

Just what the peasants who live in the countryside think of their lot is harder to determine. The newspapers print fewer of their complaints, leaving the impression that the crisis of confidence is an urban phenomenon.

Peasants apparently are happy with recently raised grain prices, but many of them, particularly young ones, still want to move to the city and may consider the disaffected young urban workers spoiled.

The Worker's Daily in particular has tried in recent weeks to discuss frankly the ill humor among its readers. The newspaper said it has received many letters like Yu's, which suggests that workers are not willing to exert themselves anymore.

"While most people in China are becoming more and more confident in the country's socialist modernization program," the newspaper wrote, "some are losing their faith as a result of difficulties that were bound to crop up and because their personal problems cannot be solved quickly."

Sour letters

A European diplomat with several Chinese acquaintances here said: "After the euphoria of the fall of the Gang of Four," the Politburo clique that supported unpopular austerity policies, "it had to be expected that people would begin to realize things weren't going to get better very fast, and there would be great disillusionment."

The official press, confronting sour letters to the editor, has this time been careful to avoid the overblown rhetoric and high-flying promises of the late 1950s and 1960s, which produced this generation of cynics.

"There are many problems in various areas that still need to be solved. They include imbalance in the national economy, price and financial problems, bad management and losses in some enterprises, and difficulties in people's daily life," the Workers' Daily said.

Officials and technicians with special skills and responsible jobs say they feel less discouraged, although they are more skeptical of government promises and doubt that the economy will improve quickly.

"There are more kinds of food available now," said one Peking official in his late 30s, "and parents now have a chance for their children to go to university." It is a chance usually restricted to bright students who can find a good high school to prepare for the college entrance examinations, but those who do pass — about 300,000 last year — also express great optimism about the future.

Yu, the young worker who wrote to the Worker's Daily, said he volunteered in 1968 to do construction work in Heilongjiang, in the cold northeast near the Soviet border.

"But as time went on, I lost confidence," he said. Despite hard work, he said, his state farm was seriously mismanaged and operated in the red. Workers' health deteriorated, and few improvements in living conditions were made.

Yu finally arranged in 1977 to return to Peking and get a factory job. "I feel deeply that our generation's road has been rather rough," Yu said.

Youth agitated

Shanghai's Wen Hui Bao newspaper blamed the excesses of the Gang of Four and other past leaders for making youth feel disappointed, unhappy and agitated." Such youth "stood a better chance of learning the truth" than people still in the leadership who blindly follow Marxist dogma without seeing what works, the newspaper said.

These assaults on the "whatever" faction — those who allegedly argue that the leadership should do whatever the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung said — appear designed to fit a scheme to purge Mao's remaining close disciples from the ruling party Politburo.

Analysts here expect a Communist Party Central Committee plenum sometime this year will further erode the influence of such leaders as former Peking commander Chen Xilian and former Mao bodyguard Wang Dongxing. The leadership appears to hope such changes will reassure a doubting population that the disruptive political campaigns and purges of the Mao years will not be repeated.

What the country really needs, said one longtime diplomat here, is "a little economic improvement, a raising of standards by a discernible bit, then confidence may gradually return and some of this gloom may lift."

"Rates as low, or lower than our major competitors in this city!"

I just want you to know that it is our policy that our rates for car rentals will be as low, or lower than our major competitors in this city. As low, or lower . . . that is our commitment."

today's markets

Toronto

The Toronto stock market was sharply higher in active mid-afternoon trading today.

Trading in Czar Resources Ltd., which was halted Friday, resumed and by 2 p.m. the stock was up 1⅛ to $21⅛.

Czar said a wholly-owned subsidiary, Czar Resources Inc., has drilled two oil discoveries in Texas.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said trading was halted at the opening in shares of OPI Ltd. The company's class A stock last traded at $46.

OPI has proposed to consolidate its class A and class B common shares into a single class of common shares on a two-for-one basis.

Trading in shares of Hugh Russel Inc., which was also halted at the opening, resumed and by 2 p.m. the company's class A stock jumped 3⅛ to $16¾.

First Commerce Financial Corp. said it is making an offer of $18 a share for all of Hugh Russel's outstanding A and B common shares.

Vancouver

Prices were up in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume at 10:54 a.m. PST was 7,396,246 shares.

Of stocks traded, 292 advanced, 128 declined and 127 were unchanged.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials, gaining .20 to $8.70 on 55,670 shares. Grouse Mountain dropped .04 to .70 on 8,000, Proflex remained steady at .35 on 8,000 and Ardiem Industrial remained unchanged at .25 on 7,500. Taro Industries dropped ¼ to $5¾ and Renn Industries remained unchanged at $2.

On the resource and development board, Kamad Silver gained .60 to $3.25 on 616,600 shares and San Jacinto Explorations rose .13 to .63 on 264,000. Tyee Lake Resources advanced .05 to .45 on 119,500 and Banner Resources remained unchanged at $5.45 on 106,370. Norex Resources rose .20 to $1.40 and Liberty Petroleums gained .50 to $5.30.

Cornwall Pete led trading on the curb exchange, declining .25 $5.50 on 178,700 shares. Oriana Development gained .12 to .57 on 137,000, Mackenzie Energy advanced .30 to $2.10 on 91,300 and Beach Gold Mines advanced .05 to $1.50 on 83,500. Belmont Resources gained .55 to $3.75 and Northern Lights gained a dime to $1.25.

New York

The market rallied Friday in anticipation of some new inflation-fighting plan, with rumors focusing on such possibilities as restraints on expansion of credit.

But such an announcement was not forthcoming over the weekend, and today traders seemed to step back to wait.

Meanwhile, Wall Street was faced with the likelihood of more increases soon in the prime lending rate, which went to a record 16¾ per cent late last week at several large banks.

There were predictions that the basic rate on blue-chip loans would soon reach 17 per cent, and that it could go still higher before long.

London

The Financial Times index fell 2.7 to 464.4.

Oils were mixed while golds declined.

Noranda buys up Maclaren

TORONTO (CP) — The addition of Maclaren Power and Paper Co. of Buckingham, Que., to the forest product properties of Noranda Mines Ltd. of Toronto will make it one of the top four cost-effective companies in the industry, Noranda's executive vice-president says.

Adam Zimmerman says Noranda has been interested in the medium-size pulp and newsprint manufacturer for at least six years.

The share swap planned by Noranda — 11 Noranda shares for every six Maclaren shares — puts a value on the transaction of $230 million at current market prices.

Noranda's other forest assets include 28 per cent of British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. of Vancouver, 55 per cent of Fraser Inc. of Edmunston, N.B., and 50 per cent of Northwood Pulp and Timber Ltd. of Prince George, B.C.

Reynolds Co. pact reached

BAIE-COMEAU, Que. (CP) — Canadian Reynolds Metals Co. Ltd. has reached a new three-year contract with about 1,000 workers at its aluminum smelter here. The agreement, reached late Friday after a two-day strike by the workers, members of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, includes wage increases totalling 5.5 per cent over two years and a provision for cost-of-living protection.

U.S. dollar costly

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Bank of Canada has announced it is increasing its U.S. dollar base lending rate to 17 per cent from 16¾ per cent, effective immediately.

Future shock strikes at Lloyds of London

L.A. Times

LONDON — They still ring the old French ship's bell for big news, once for bad, twice for good.

They still record the loss of ships in a big ledger using a quill pen, in the center of the giant trading room.

And the clerks, dressed in green and red uniforms, are still called waiters, a reminder that the original Lloyds of London was a coffee house, where merchants, brokers and underwriters met to her the latest shipping news and to draw up insurance policies.

Now, 300 years later, Lloyds finds its traditional ways of doing business challenged by problems its cleverest officials could not foresee as recently as a few years ago.

Known for the creative, innovative type of coverage that has come to be synonymous with its name, Lloyds is suddenly caught up in controversies that accurately reflect that diversity, ranging from computer technology to fires in the Bronx slums.

On the computer front, Lloyds underwriters face claims of $270 million, a record. Because of the fire losses, Lloyds and some of its members are engaged in a unique court battle, and more members have been expelled from the house in the last year than in the previous half-century.

There is a potential claim for damages in connection with the American threat to boycott the Olympic Games in Moscow and another involving a giant oil tanker that mysteriously disappeared, but those pale by comparison.

Like other big London financial institutions, Lloyds operates on traditional rules of conduct, a firm handshake, an oral bond. Now, many experts believe the famous insurance house will have to reform its operations.

One expected change is to permit, for a time, some of Lloyds' work to be done by foreign underwriters abroad, particularly in the United States, where half of Lloyds $4.5 billion in annual premiums originate.

The present rules go back more than a century to a simpler time, before Lloyds entered its recent period of explosive growth. In 10 years, Lloyds membership has tripled, to 18,555.

The members are organized into 400 syndicates that provide the funds for policies written under Lloyds rules. Providing the vital link between the customers who want insurance and the underwriters who write it are 220 brokerage firms.

Lloyds itself is a small corporation, a society that provides the building and services for the underwriters and brokers. Admission to this select circle is controlled by committees of members.

Despite the pressure caused by the current controversies, most members apparently want to keep the institution as traditional as possible.

"I cannot believe that the time has come when Lloyds as a society of underwriters and as an insurance market needs a governing body equipped with and ready to use even more Draconian powers in the maintenance of law and order," said Ian Findlay, who stepped down as members chairman in December.

The controversy involves what was known as Syndicate 762, a group of 110 investors headed by Frederick Sasse. Like other Lloyds syndicates, No. 762 included many individuals who invested money in insurance underwriting as they might in stocks and bonds.

To join a Lloyds syndicate, one must show personal wealth of $100,000 pounds ($225,000) and be approved by vote. The syndicates are managed by underwriters, who also organize the investors, sometimes placing them in different groups at the same time to spread the risk.

Under Sasse's direction, Syndicate 762 insured New York slum property against fire, taking policies written by a Florida agent, Den-Har Underwriters. The properties were destroyed by fire, and some of the fires are being investigated as possible cases of arson for profit.

Sasse's group also accepted part of the huge package of policies written at Lloyds to insure Amreican computer-leasing companies. The Americans took out the policies to protect themselves against losses if their customers decided to cancel leases in the event that more modern computer equipment came on the market.

Altogether, Syndicate 762 is facing losses of $45 million, losses that are supposed to be shared by all 110 members.

A Lloyds committee has insisted that the syndicate pay the claims without waiting for any reimbursement that might come from a Brazilian re-insurance company that covered the fire insurance policies or for settlement of legal disputes among its 110 investors.

"We pride ourselves on paying claims promptly," an official said.

Some syndicate members refused to pay their share of the claims despite the Lloyds principle of collective responsibility. The society paid the claims out of its general funds and then started legal action against some members of the Sasse syndicate.

"Some of the group is ready to pay and some of the group cannot pay," a Lloyds spokesman said. "Forty can pay but are resisting paying."

Twelve syndicate members were declared in default of their obligations and were dropped from Lloyds rolls. Only three or four members had been dropped in the previous 60 years.

Some of the recalcitrant are suing Lloyds because they believe that Syndicate 762 was mismanaged and that the society's rules were not strict enough.

One person who is suing, Brig. Peter Adland, summed up his feelings as follows:

"It's all very sad. But important principles have to be sorted out because some of us would have to mortgage or sell property."

Another, opera singer Nigel Douglas, said he was "in the position of accepting private charity. My only chance of paying off these debts is staying a member of Lloyds."

In all, 55 syndicates were involved in the computer-leasing policies, which were written in 1976 and 1977. The Lloyds groups carried 80 per cent of the 14,000 policies and outside companies carried the other 20 per cent.

Total potential loss to the insurers is estimated at $340 million.

Canada's economy hit by slow growth

OTTAWA(CP) — The economy grew by 2.9 per cent in 1979, excluding inflation, the third year of slow growth, Statistics Canada reported Friday.

However, growth in production slowed from 1978 when the economy grew by 3.4 per cent.

The agency said that gross national product — the sum of goods and services produced by the economy — increased to $129.8 billion in 1979 from $126.1 billion in 1978, not counting inflation.

Export demand, which had fueled growth in the previous two years, dropped sharply in 1979. A slowdown in spending by consumers and government added to the economy's weakness in 1979, the agency said.

One source of strength in economic output was business spending on new plant and equipment for expansion, an expected development given a 40-per-cent rise in corporate profits last year and many industries operating near capacity.

A more than 300-per-cent increase in business inventories to $2 billion in 1979 added to the economy's growth last year. But such a large build-up in inventories — while adding to output — is not really a healthy sign since they represent unsold goods and services.

The economy's growth in 1979 is just a shade below the projected growth of 2.9 per cent after inflation made in the defeated Conservative budget of December.

Despite slow economic growth in 1979, the agency says there is some room for optimism for higher output in future because the manufacturing sector is once again competitive thanks to a drop in the international value of the dollar.

In addition, a wage bubble has yet to emerge following an end to wage and price controls in 1978. Wages are expected to increase by about 10 per cent this year, so that workers will continue to lag or just keep pace with inflation.

Consumer spending, one potential source of economic growth, grew by only 2.3 per cent in 1979, one of the lowest annual increases in the last 20 years. Once income tax cuts and temporary sales tax cuts ended by the first half of 1979, consumer demand dropped sharply as consumers spent less on cars, homes and other major items.

The government sector also dampened economic growth, showing a slight drop in spending to $3.9 billion last year.

Meanwhile, business spending on new plants and equipment increased 10.4 per cent after inflation, continuing a recovery which began in mid-1978. Much of the higher investment was in the mining and manufacturing sectors.

On the price front, the cost of all consumer goods and services increased nine per cent in 1979, up from 7.3 per cent in 1978.

Ford rebates offered

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ford of Canada Ltd. will pay rebates of $300 and $500 to purchasers of some of its most fuel-efficient 1980 model cars, effective March 1, company president Roy Bennett said Thursday.

"We believe that this action is the first direct customer rebate program in Canada to include 1980 models."

Bennett said the $500 rebate applies to all Ford Thunderbird and Mercury Cougar XR-7 models delivered or ordered in March and the $300 rebate applies to all Ford Fairmont and Mercury Zephyr models delivered or ordered in March.

"Unlike rebate programs in the mid-1970s, our present rebates apply to car lines which are selling strongly and have significant fuel-economy advantages.

Bennett said the rebate will be paid by Ford in the form of a cheque directly to the purchaser.

Too much too soon, says gillnetter

By MIKE HUGHES

Seiners and gillnetters take potshots at one another's methods of catching herring.

But they school together in opposition to the manner in which the federal fisheries department manages the resource.

Bob Reeve, a gillnetter who began fishing herring in 1975, has noticed both the stocks and the fish getting smaller.

"We are seeing the resource depleting because of mismanagement by federal fisheries," he says.

Fishermen shouldn't have been allowed to take 86,000 tons in 1976 or 80,000 in 1977, says Reeve, a 32-year-old Central Saanich resident.

"The resource couldn't stand that kind of exploitation.

"If they had let us take 45,000 tons we would be working with a renewable resource.

"But they didn't. They were operating totally in the dark and so they said go ahead."

He says he knew three years ago that the fishery was in trouble because the fish were getting smaller.

When he first started he was catching the bigger eight- or 10-year-old herring.

"We've killed off all the old ones and now we're not letting the young ones survive.

"I wouldn't be suprised if there wasn't a fishery next year."

Last year, the federal fisheries department forecast that 59,300 tons of herring would be caught but the catch only amounted to 40,581 tons.

In 1978, the quota was 82,500 and 70,000 tons were pulled in.

Mervyn Campbell, 8611 Lochside in North Saanich, is skipper of an 86-foot seiner called Windward Cloud.

He's been fishing herring since 1970 when it was done as a pilot project by a Japanese company.

He disagrees with Reeve on the stock situation but is critical of fisheries in other areas.

There's plenty of fish, he says, adding that some places may be low but the stocks have increased in other areas.

"They're playing it down. There's more herring in the water then they want you to believe."

One reason the quotas are getting lower and lower is that fisheries officials are late in opening some areas and the main schools are missed, Campbell says.

As an example, the Gulf of Georgia wasn't opened to seiners last season despite the fact, he says, that it was full of herring.

But Campbell is irked at fisheries for allowing too many boats on the grounds and says there is little or no control over the licensing system.

He says there are boats fishing for the herring which shouldn't legally be allowed and there is wheeling and dealing in licences which should be controlled.

"It seems they don't have a hard and fast rule for everyone.

"The guy that believes what they say and plays it honest is going to be the loser."

Confusion seems to be management's main conservation tool, he says, and the seine fishermen are getting fed up with it.

Fisheries officials say they aren't going to open certain areas and then make snap announcements that they are open for, say, 15 or 20 minutes.

Or they'll wait in a small area before monitoring the herring to see if they are "ripe" until there are too many boats around.

"I don't know what they are trying to do," Campbell says.

"But it's come to the point now where the guys are getting too fed up with getting the runaround."

Reeve blames the federal government for not putting more money into researching aspects of the multi-million dollar industry.

He says last year the fisheries department spent $60,000 on research.

"What can you learn spending $60,000?"

Reeve thinks the gut feeling of most people outside the industry is that fishermen and companies are "engaged in a rape of the resource."

CAMPBELL
. . . playing it down

But that's wrong, he says, because fishermen like himself have a great deal of money invested in the industry and they don't want to see the fishery die off.

Reeve just sold his old boat and bought a new, 42-foot freezer troller.

He says the cost of the new boat is amortized over 20 or 30 years.

Boats jam Fishermen's Wharf

"To do that I have to be fishing. There has to be a future in it," he points out.

Reeve admits there is the opportunity to make big money in roe herring but adds there are a lot of fishermen who don't hit the jackpot.

"There are some rich fishermen but there are an awful lot of very poor fishermen."

(One gillnetter last year was reported to have made $108,000 in one day.)

Reeve estimates by the time all the costs are taken into consideration, the average return to the fishermen for the short herring season would be about $11,000.

"For the majority it's a living.

The purse-seiners range in size from 60 to 100 feet and can cost anywhere from $500,000 to $2 million.

Their tarred nylon nets, worth $50,000 apiece, are 275 fathoms long and hang down as much as 40 fathoms.

The net is towed around a school of herring and the end brought back to the boat. A purse line at the bottom of the net is pulled tight and the result is a big mesh bag, likely boiling with thousands of thrashing herring.

A good set of a seiner's net could trap as much as 400 tons of herring.

Gillnetting is done from punts or skiffs which range from 23 feet to as much as 40 feet and can cost anywhere from $12,000 to $30,000.

The gillnetters use 75-fathom-long, single filament nets which hang straight up and down in shallow water with a lead line strung along the bottom and cork floats on the top.

Unlike the seine net which has a half-inch mesh designed not to let any herring escape, the gillnet has 2¼-inch mesh which allows the smaller fish — probably those under three years old — to get through.

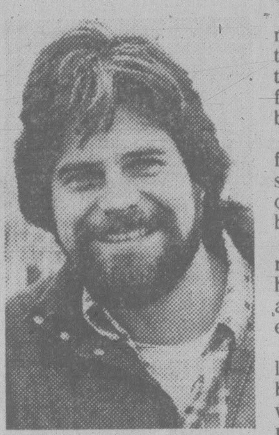
The net is anchored at both ends and when the fishermen in the skiff want to start bringing in the fish, they pull one end of the net up, slide the punt under and work it sideways along the net, "shaking" the herring into the boat.

Seiners are critical of the gillnet operation because they say it allows some fish to squeeze through the mesh, losing some scales in the process.

The seiner men say a lot of herring drop out of the net when it is being hauled up and "shaked."

Biologists, the seiners claim, say that once a fish loses even one or two scales it will die.

So there is a waste inherent in the gillnet system that isn't part of the seine operation, which takes the whole school in one "clunk."



REEVE
. . . stocks getting smaller

But the seines come in for their share of criticism, too, by those who say they take too many fish out in one swoop and therefore make it hard for the fisheries to keep close tabs on the catch.

And when the seines go after herring in shallow water, their nets chew up the spawning grounds doing irreparable damage, the critics say, and are possibly the reason why herring stocks in some heavily-fished areas are dwindling.

The whole season is crammed into four or five weeks. In some places, the federal fisheries department may only open an area for 15 or 20 minutes. In other places it may stay open 48 hours.

When the area is opened depends on the maturity of the roe. This is determined by fisheries officials who monitor the herring and allow it to be caught only when the roe reaches a certain percentage of the fish's total body weight.

"A terrifically mad scramble," and "total bedlam" are the words Campbell and Reeve use to describe what takes place on the grounds.

Reeve says at times there may be as many as 500 punts crammed into a bay, all trying to stake their territory.

"It's very aggressive fishing," he says.

"It's a pretty wild time."

"Usually fish are congregated down one end of a bay, maybe 125 seines all crammed in.

"Well, all of a sudden one guy will start to set (his net) and another guy will set right beside him and another guy will start to set and can't get his net out and you go over his cork line.

"There's a lot of swearing on the phone."

Campbell says there is a danger for the seiners when they are bringing in the net in a real blow.

If it is a heavy set of fish, meaning a school which tends to stay deep rather than mill around the surface of the net, the boat can be flipped over.

Travelling with a boat so full of herring that the stern is knee-deep in water can be tricky, too, Campbell says.

An experienced fisherman makes sure that bulkheads and centreboards are secure so that the slithery cargo doesn't shift.

He says the main problems arise not when the boats are full of fish but when the empty boats are rushing back to the grounds.

Their fuel tanks are often not too full, sometimes nets are strung up on the stern resulting in a dangerous shift in the centre of gravity.

"These things are sheering and rolling over."

Reeve says for the gillnetters it can be dangerous when they are towing a punt in 30- to 40-knot winds.

"One or two guys every season don't make it. It's dangerous. Make no mistake about that. I mean every year people die."

Ryan plan wins massive support

Ryan acknowledges round of applause

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Quebec Liberals have given a massive vote of confidence to party leader Claude Ryan by almost unanimously approving his proposals for constitutional reform.

At a weekend convention attended by 2,000 delegates, the Liberals launched their referendum campaign with a firm commitment to prove that Quebecers are "better off" in a Canadian federal system.

"The PQ has been telling lies and poisoning the minds of Quebecers for more than 10 years with the claim that Quebec is an economic loser in Confederation," he said.

The Levesque government has drawn up a "false, fraudulent and hypocritical" referendum question that seeks to "trick" Quebecers into supporting a political option they don't believe in, Ryan said.

"A massive NO will confirm the real will of the people."

Ryan's document, entitled A New Canadian Federation is the Liberals' response to the Parti Quebecois proposal for political sovereignty with an economic association between Quebec and Canada.

"We now have two clearly opposed options on what Quebec's future should be," the Liberal leader said. "There won't be any room for fence-sitters."

Ryan said the PQ government, by softening its question into a simple request for a negotiating mandate, had sunk to a "sordid" low in a desperate bid to remain in power in the next provincial election.

"It's incredible that a government elected on a platform of "transparency" could have reached such a level."

Ryan said the government is enlisting support for a YES vote in the referendum "by twisting the arms" of mayors and other prominent personalities with the promise of government grants.

He warned Quebecers that a YES vote would be interpreted by Levesque and his ministers as support for Quebec independence. "A YES vote would lead Quebecers onto slippery terrain and allow the PQ to take them where they do not want to go."

Rene Levesque had other ideas, however.

In Montreal Sunday, Levesque said a yes vote in the Quebec referendum would increase the bargaining power of any future Quebec government — even a Liberal one — vis-a-vis the rest of Canada.

Speaking at a rally in support of a yes vote, Levesque attacked Quebec Liberal leader Claude Ryan for playing down the importance of the referendum.

The premier said Ryan "couldn't care less . . . and would throw it (a yes vote) in the waste basket."

"The man thinks he is above democracy, which is a rather dangerous."

Ombudsman needed

Victoria General Hospital's half-time volunteer ombudsman Jo Dixon says the job should be a full-time, salaried position.

Dixon makes the recommendation in a report to the hospital board on the position, created last spring for a six-month trial run.

Patients are most concerned about lack of resources, particularly facilities for the aged, says Dixon, a 1977 graduate of the University of Victoria school of social work.

And many people are worried about long waits for surgery not classified as urgent or emergency.

The ombudsman was sometimes asked to settle arguments between patients and staff and between smokers and non-smokers.

But Dixon said six months on the job was not long enough to gauge the merits of the ombudsman position.

"What is clear is that there is a need for humanizing influences in the hospital and a vehicle for the exercise of human rights," she says in the report.

The ombudsman should be responsible to the chairman of the board and be a full time paid employee with the usual benefits, says Dixon, who will leave the position at the end of the month.

The job should have tenure to protect it against political pressure and dismissal should be a unanimous vote from the hospital society, she recommends.

St. Michael's has enrolment of 530

How many private schools are there in Greater Victoria? What are the fees and which is biggest?

The B.C. Federation of Independent Schools Association, representing 207 schools, says Victoria has 17 of Vancouver Island's 29 non-public schools.

Most are church-affiliated and represent many denominations.

But there are 10 non-sectarian independent schools, usually referred to as private schools, in Greater Victoria and southern Vancouver Island.

The four in Victoria are, in order of enrolment, St. Michael's University School with 530 boys and girls, including day pupils and boarders, St. Margaret's School with 330 girls and boys, both boarding and day pupils, Norfolk House School with 285 day girls and Glenlyon School for Boys with 220 day pupils.

Then there's Brentwood College at Mill Bay (345 boys and girls, all boarding); Shawnigan Lake School (245 boarding and day boys) and Queen Margaret's School, Duncan (170 day and boarding girls).

Fees range from about $1,200 a year for kindergarten day pupils to as much as $7,000 for senior grade boarders.

For example, Grade 1 at St. Michael's costs $1,700, about half the cost of a typical day pupil at an Ontario private school, where boarders pay up to $8,000 a year.

A 78-year-old man died late Sunday after receiving third-degree burns to 50 per cent of his body in a fire in his apartment.

Firemen said the blaze in Thomas Boyle's View Towers suite at 1147 Quadra was started by a cigarette in upholstery.

Firefighters say they are concerned over the fact that some of the occupants of the block's 360 suites ignored the alarm bells and remained in the building.

A fire department spokesman said Boyle attempted to put out the fire himself but was forced to retreat to the balcony of his eighth-floor corner apartment.

The alarm was received by the fire department at 8:55 a.m. and Boyle was plucked from the balcony by firemen using a ladder truck.

A fire department official said Boyle was conscious when he was taken to Victoria General Hospital but died at 11:30 p.m.

Firefighters battled the blaze from the ladder truck to the balcony as well as from inside using the building's standpipe system.

The fire was out in 10 minutes.

Damage to the suite was more than $40,000.

Two other fires handled by Victoria firefighters Sunday involved fireplaces.

Damage is estimated at about $1,500 in one blaze at the home of David Payne, 2516 Fernwood.

Strapping alongside the chimney overheated and ignited.

There was $12,000 damage in a roof fire at 589 John, the home of Anctic Gilles.

The fire started in wood adjacent to the chimney and the roof caught fire.

Escapers caught

Guards and RCMP officers from Sooke and Colwood captured two inmates who escaped from the Jordan River Correctional Institute late Sunday and a third man is to appear in court charged with assisting the escape.

A juvenile girl was also picked up for questioning about the unsuccessful breakout.

Victim named

Colwood RCMP have identified the 15-year-old girl struck and killed by a truck in the 3200-block Metchosin Road Friday afternoon as Charlene Wenzel. The Wenzel girl was struck by a pickup truck while walking along Metchosin with a friend.

Mair, RJH deny blame for man's blindness

Health Minister Rafe Mair and Royal Jubilee Hospital officials today denied the hospital was to blame for an elderly man losing his sight.

Mair said he has reviewed an investigation of the case and said it makes clear all major decisions about the patient's surgery were made by the man's physician, Dr. D.P. North, an opthamologist.

The minister said he is not making any judgements about the doctor's actions but suggested the College of Physicians and Surgeons might be interested in examining the files.

Dr. North said the elderly man waited "quietly and patiently for his call from the hospital for more than seven months."

But Mair said, "This is an entirely inaccurate and inflammatory remark."

He said Royal Jubilee first heard from Dr. North on July 26 when he booked surgery for his patient.

"The date preferred by Dr. North was Dec. 6, some 5½ months later, so that is when Jubilee booked the admission for surgery."

The doctor later cancelled the Dec. 6 booking and rebooked for Dec. 27.

Mair said Dr. North described the patient as requiring elective surgery — the least urgent of all booking categories.

Jubilee Hospital board chairman Eric Simmons also said Dr. North made bookings for elective surgery.

"The patient didn't lose his sight because of non-admittance to this hospital," Simmons said during a press conference.

The patient could have been in months earlier if North had changed his classification to urgent, he said.

Classified urgent, the patient's wait would have been between six and eight weeks.

But hospital admitting records show Dr. North on July 26 booked Dec. 6 surgery for one eye.

North didn't call again until Oct. 9 to book a Jan. 23 surgery date for the other eye, Simmons said.

Mair said: "If the patient were in as desperate condition as Dr. North now retrospectively portrays him, I would have expected him to have called the hospital requesting the booking be changed."

Federal grant may lead to geriatric studies at UVic

By NORMAN GIDNEY

The University of Victoria is seeking a federal grant which could lead to establishment of an institute for geriatric studies.

Economist Rod Dobell of the school of public administration said today UVic initially will ask for funds to carry out three loosely-linked research projects starting in 1981.

The first is demographic modelling — provincial and national population projections, patterns in migration and so on.

"That's our interest — creating the data base, the computer programs to be able to do that kind of work."

The impact of the increasing numbers of aging Canadians on the social security system — pension plans, health insurance, unemployment insurance — is the second general study topic under consideration.

Third is a study of the individual, personal aspects of the aging process.

Questions will include the kind of needs created by an aging population, what programs now deal with the aged and where do they miss the target.

If the university gets grants for these research projects, the second stage would be to tie them together into a co-ordinated study of aging and finally a full-fledged institute.

There's a deadline of May 15 for grant applications to the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council, the successor organization to the Canada Counеil in funding academic research.

Two years ago it gave $750,000 to the UVic political science department for research on the transition in governments when Social Credit and the NDP traded places in the 1970s.

Last year it handed out $1 million for studies on aging, which the council identified as its number one priority in research spending.

UVic [illegible] first round because it was concentrating on a proposal for a geriatric institute.

Dobell said UVic is optimistic about obtaining some money this time since the university has a nursing school and there is talk of some kind of medical school.

Some three dozen professors helped in the initial planning of the application but the actual research projects would probably involve about a dozen faculty in history, economics, sociology, public administration and geography, he said.

A team approach is suggested in their outline with groups studying such topics as the factors which affect demand or need for income support or special services for the aged, evaluation of existing programs, the costs of the commitment to support the aged.

Vikettes wrap up title

By ERNIE FEDORUK

University of Victoria Vikettes, to nobody's surprise, swept Calgary Dinnies aside in two straight games to win the Canada West University Athletic Association's women's basketball championship series.

They did it with consumate ease because coach Kathy Shields wants Vikettes to retain the intensity for next weekend's national event in Calgary.

They did it, somewhat sadly, with Carol Turney-Loos leading the way, as she had so often in the past. The sadness is intoned because her performance in Sunday's title-sealing 80-50 victory may have been her final home appearance in a Victoria uniform.

Fewer than 300 fans were on hand.

There were considerably more Saturday, when Vikettes opened the best-of-three series with a 76-56 triumph, but the farewell turnout didn't seem fair.

A 20-point producer Saturday night, the two-time CWUAA scoring champion completed her basketball tenure at UVic with 33, shooting a nifty 52 per cent from the field and 88 per cent from the free-throw line and six rebounds, five on defence.

"It's sad," [illegible] former Vikette coach Mike [illegible]. "Everybody thinks of Carol as a shooter. She does that very well, but she also does so many other things. She rebounds and passes as well as anyone."

Shields agreed.

"Today's (Sunday's) game was one of her best defensively.

"Carol undoubtedly is the most complete player in Canada today. She has gone beyond her specialty (shooting). She is great defensively and she has the ability to draw the team together.

"Generally," added Kathy "there are two kinds of athletes. There are kids with natural talent and no heart or desire to really work. And there are kids with the heart but not the talent.

"Carol has both."

Turney-Loos will complete her collegiate career in Halifax and then will join the national Olympic team for a possible trip to Moscow, give or take a boycott or two. Thereafter, Carol Turney-Loos may wind up in a professional league blossoming in the U.S.

The only one scheduled to graduate from Canada's top-ranked women's team, it should have been Carol's weekend. It was, to a point, but the depth and talent that exists on the Vikettes made their weekend sweep a team effort. Luanne Hebb scored 27 after a 16-point performance Saturday; Tracy McAra scored 14 points Saturday; Sandy Lewis, Donna Digby, Susan Shaw, Jane Boe and Cindy Smith added their worthwhile contributions, rebounding and scoring.

The eight, generally, have carried Vikettes. Freshmen Janine Prince and Karen Packalen were told, at the outset, that they will "have their years ahead of them."

With both games clearly in Vikettes' control, Shields declined liberal substitution and the chance to "take it easy" on Calgary.

"What's that they say about 'nice guys finishing last?'" Shields responded. "It hurts me not to play everybody, but I can't afford to have the team lose its intensity. We're 38-1 for the year, and in every game but three — towards the end of the season — the girls always have had intensity.

"This isn't the time to lose it."

N. Ont., Sask. share lead; Gowsell edges Horrigan

Times News Services

CALGARY (CP) — Al Hackner said his Northern Ontario rink struggled a little with the ice Sunday, while Rick Folk, skip of the Saskatchewan rink from Saskatoon, said he had the jitters.

But they overcame their problems with consistent performances in the first two draws of the Canadian men's curling championship to share the lead with 2-0 records.

Victoria's Tim Horrigan, representing British Columbia, suffered a first-round defeat at the hands of Calgary's Paul Gowsell 5-3. Horrigan and Gowsell had byes in the second round.

Gowsell, winner of two world junior titles, took advantage of a tough but inconsistent B. C.rink in the opening draw and stole one in the second end and two more in the third for a 3-0 lead.

In the third end, Horrigan tried to go through a narrow port with his final stone, and tap-back Gowsell's shot rock. However, the B.C. skip rubbed on a front guard and knocked an Alberta stone into the house to give Gowsell two.

Horrigan came back with two in the fourth end, but Gowsell made a cold draw to the 12-foot in the eighth to restore the winning margin.

"We started out very strong," said Hackner after defeating Richard Belyea's New Brunswick rink from Saint John 9-4 in the evening's second draw at the Stampede Corral.

"We played the first half pretty well and then slackened off a bit. It's good ice but we struggled with it here and there."

Folk, who finished in a tie for second place with Northern Ontario's Larry Pineau at last year's tournament, credited his front end of brothers Jim, the lead, and Tom Wilson, the second, for helping to keep Saskatchewan undefeated.

"We're getting our draw weight. I don't believe we missed more than one open takeout all day."

Entering today's play, Alberta and Ontario's Russ Howard of Penetanguishene were also undefeated — both at 1-0.

The first two draws of the 51st championship, previously sponsored by Macdonald Tobacco Co., attracted 7,676 fans.

In other second-round results Sunday night, Saskatchewan beat P.E.I. 7-3, Nova Scotia stole three in the 10th end to surprise Manitoba 10-6, the Territories downed Newfoundland 7-4 and Ontario took an 8-7 extra-end win over Jim Ursel of Quebec.

Northern Ontario stormed back from a 9-4 deficit after eight ends to beat Nova Scotia 10-9 in an extra end of the first draw. In other first-draw results, Manitoba rallied to beat the Territories 7-5, Saskatchewan struggled to a 5-2 win over Newfoundland and P.E.I. scored three in the final end to nip New Brunswick 7-6.

For the first time in several years, umpires were near the curlers, instead of in the stands, to watch for possible rule violations.

"As long as they keep their mouths shut, that's okay," said Gowsell.

T-Bird scoring star earns Times Trophy

Cowichan ace Greg Walters collected a big chunk of glory Saturday on the final day of the Vancouver Island high school boys' basketball tournament.

After setting a single-game scoring record and leading the Thunderbirds to two victories, Walters was selected as the winner of the Times Trophy that annually goes to the tournament's outstanding player.

The six-foot-nine center, who set the single-game mark by connecting for 38 points in an 83-57 triumph over Belmont Braves and counted 18 during an 89-57 conquest of Victoria High Totems in a battle for third place, also received a Times award as a member of the all-star team. Joining Walters on the all-star quintet were Cowichan clubmate Gary Stockford, Jim Jordbro and Dan Steffes of the title-winning Nanaimo Islanders and Brent Daniel, who scored 22 points for Courtenay Towhees in the championship game.

Selected to the tournament's second team and also earning Times awards were Boyd Gallic of Alberni Chieftains, high-scoring Dave Brown of Nanaimo, Rob Ekstrom of Belmont, Paul Russell of Vic High and Bob Hoeppner of Courtenay.

Islanders return to Island throne

Nanaimo Islanders regained the title as northern teams made a clean sweep of the top three berths when the Vancouver Island high school boys' basketball championship ended Saturday night in the University of Victoria's McKinnon Gymnasium.

The highly-favored Nanaimo, third-ranked school in the province, downed Courtenay Towhees 71-58 in the final and Cowichan Thunderbirds finished third to shut south Island teams out of the provincial championship tournament for the first time in the 30-year history of the Island tourney. The top three finishers in the Island event go on to B.C. playoff in Vancouver, Mar.12 to 15.

Coached by John Levering, Nanaimo won the Island title two years ago and went on to add the B.C. crown. Last year, the Islanders were upset by Parkland in the Island final but never really looked like being beaten in this year's three-day tourney.

Nanaimo got 26 points from David Brown in the final against Towhees, who are coached by Dave Vranges. It was the fifth straight win for the Islanders this season over Courtenay.

Cowichan Thunderbirds saved their best performance of the tournament for the end when they crushed Vic High Totems 89-57 to place third and set a couple of records on the way.

Greg Walters scored 38 points (beating the tournament record of 37 for most points in one game) earlier when Cowichan downed Belmont Braves 83-74 and the Thunderbirds finished the three days with a total of 315 points which bettered the tourney record of 304 set by Nanaimo in 1977.

Cowichan's win over Vic High was a reversal of their first-round game, in which saw the Totems won 74-63. The second time around, though, the smaller Totems, coached by Ash Valdal, appeared weary and after trailing 42-31 at half time, soon fell even further behind.

To reach the playoff for third and fourth places, Vic High had beaten Alberni Chieftains 81-66 earlier Saturday. But being smaller in stature, having a decidedly-weaker bench than Cowichan, and having to play two tough games on the same day proved too much for the Totems.

Sprays romp

VANCOUVER — Seasprays, Victoria's entry in the Pacific Northwest Field Lacrosse League, are adapting to the game much more quickly than are their mainland rivals coming out of boxla ranks.

As a result, Seasprays have cruised to four easy victories, averaging 24 goals a game while allowing just under six.

Tarey Pollock, who pumped in five in the Sunday outing, scored four goals while Bill Marechek added three in the Saturday game. Jim Lynch (2), Jeevan Dillon (2), Art Webster, Mike Thomas, Gord Taylor, Jim Lightbody and Andy Reid also connected for Seasprays. Ken Slade accounted for five of the seven Vancouver goals.

Mitchell ready for world test

EDMONTON (CP) — The world women's curling championship beginning in Perth, Scotland, Ma[illegible]2 is only the second such event in the history of women's curling, but European competition is not a complete mystery to Regina's Marj Mitchell, the 1980 Canadian champion.

Mitchell defeated Colleen Jones of Halifax 5-4 Sunday to win the title and advance to the 10-team world competition in Scotland, the historic home of curling.

But the veteran Saskatchewan skip has some idea of what to expect when she gets there. She led a rink on a three-week bonspiel tour of Sweden in 1976, coming back enlightened.

"We curled just Swedish teams over there and then we curled the Scottish team in the CBC (Classic) one year, so we've had some experience.

"When I left Sweden after the last bonspiel, which we won by a very close score, I told them five years from then I'd be afraid to come back."

Mitchell said the Swedes had improved visibly even during three weeks of exposure to the more experienced Saskatchewan rink.

"Their strategy had improved just from watching us 150 per cent," said Mitchell. "They weren't making foolish errors the way they were earlier. I [illegible]stand they're all tough now."

Mitchell made it to Perth the hard way, knocking off favored Nova Scotia in the final after finishing in a four-way tie for second place in the round-robin. Saskatchewan downed B.C.'s Joan Dexter in the tie-breaker, then beat Christine Bodogh of St. Catharines, Ont., in the semi-final Saturday morning.

Quick Breaker burst snaps Cougar string

It was more of a defensive shell than a bubble, but whatever the Victoria Cougars had working for them was abruptly broken in Seattle as the pesky Breakers hammered out a 7-4 Western Hockey League victory Sunday with the help of one tide-turning burst.

In recording their fourth decision over the Cougars this season, the Breakers put an end to a seven-game Victoria victory run and dulled the Cats' recent defensive accomplishments.

The result came less than 24 hours after the Cougars, controlling things from start to finish, embarassed Lethbridge Broncos 10-1 at Memorial Arena.

Sunday's was a costly loss. The Cougars, while still maintaining a four-games-in-hand advantage, dropped five points behind Western Division-leading Portland after the Winter Hawks clipped New Westminster Bruins 7-6 and 13-[illegible] in their home-and-home weekend series.

Heading into Sunday's game, the Cougars had allowed only nine goals in their last seven games. The Breakers scored more than half that total, five, in a damaging four-minute, two-second span at the start of the second period.

The burst routed starting goaltender Grant Fuhr in favor of Kevin Eastman. Fuhr suffered a bruised hand in the pre-game warmup but had no problems as the Cougars raced away to a 3-0 lead in the first period.

Then, in the brief span at the start of the second, everything turned sour for the Cougars. It was 5-3, in Seattle's favor, before the Cougars recovered but the damage had been done.

A bright spot in Victoria's defeat was the continued sniping of Bob Jansch. He scored twice, boosting his season's total to 32, to match his output in Saturday's romp over the slumping Broncos.

The Grant Rezansoff-Jansch-Brad Palmer and Barry Pederson-Bud McCarthy-Greg Adams lines fattened their point totals at the expense of a listless and disorganized Lethbridge team. Palmer and Adams each scored three and McCarthy and defenceman Len Dawes added the singles. Pederson picked up five assists, added his 46th goal Sunday to run his individual point total to 122.

Eastman played solidly in goal and lost his shutout bid when Lethbridge captain Doug Morrison scored directly off a faceoff in the Victoria zone.

The Winter Hawks, who had no problems in winning before a hometown crowd of 8,007 fans Saturday, withstood a strong third-period rally by the Bruins and pulled out the victory when Tim Tookey scored the winner on a power play with only 22 seconds remaining in regulation time.

Trailing 5-2 early in the third, Bruins struck for three goals in one minute, 40 seconds to tie the game 6-6. It was a rough game with four players ejected. Bruins' coach Ernie McLean was given a double minor, at one point, for throwing a garbage can on the ice.

Saskatoon Blades, who face the Cougars at Memorial Arena on Tuesday, took over sole poss[illegible] sixth and last playoff berth in the Eastern Division by clipping Calgary Wranglers 7-4.

Soccer hoax, or scandal?

Times New Services

The Italian soccer world was shaken today by charges from apparently disgruntled bettors that some of Italy's top players took bribes to influence games.

The charges, made in a formal complaint to a state attorney, named 21 players from the first division and six from the second division. The complaint did not specify the amount of the alleged bribes, but one newspaper in Rome said they ranged from $12,000 a game to $240,000 if a player promised to bring in some of his teammates.

According to accounts in Italian newspapers, the list included two players on the national team. But several of the players named issued heated denials.

The complaint capped weeks of rumors of a major betting scandal. Observers said it is either the biggest hoax or the biggest scandal ever to hit Italy's national pastime.

If proven true, the players would be banned from the game for life. There would also be repercussions on the weekly state-run soccer pool, a major source of revenue for the Italian Olympic Committee. Italians put down $6.7 million on a slate of 13 games played each Sunday.

Hilbert van der Duim, a 21-year-old teacher, Sunday snatched the world speed skating championship from American star Eric Heiden in one of the sport's biggest upsets in Heerenveen, Netherlands.

The soft-spoken van der Duim ended Heiden's string of three straight world championships and destroyed the air of invincibility which had surrounded the American following his sweep of five gold medals in the Olympics last month.

For the young Dutchman, the top prize came in only his second season in senior skating.

Van der Duim won the 1,500-metre race Sunday, beating Heiden, who finished second, and placed well enough in the other three events to grab the title.

At Lake Louise, Ken Read of Calgary posted the fastest time Sunday in the first training run for Tuesday's final World Cup downhill ski race of the season.

Read, who has a chance to win the downhill championship with a victory Tuesday, raced down the soft and shortened course in one minute, 36.78 seconds. That was nearly a full second faster than Uli Spiess of Austria.

Hanni Wenzel of Liechtenstein may be on the way to victory in the over-all World Cup women's skiing standings, but 25-year-old Marie-Therese Nadig of Switzerland stole a piece of her thunder in Ste. Anne de Beaupre, Que., Sunday.

Flashing almost flawlessly down the 1,250-metre course at Mont Ste. Anne, Nadig, a bronze-medal winner in the downhill at the 1980 Winter Olympics, recorded a combined time of two minutes, 48.75 seconds to capture the Martini World Cup giant slalom, the only Canadian stop for women on this year's Cup tour.

Of 111 top athletes contacted by the International Athletes Club, 77 have signed a letter affirming their right to take part. A copy of the letter is to be sent to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

This response comes as a setback for the British government, which has been trying to persuade athletes to stay away from the Games as a protest against the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

In Houston, Billie Jean King, 36, trying to regain her throne as the world's No.1 women's tennis player, took a giant step in that direction Sunday with a surprisingly easy 6-1, 6-3 victory over currently No.1-ranked Martina Navratilova in the final of a $150,000 women's pro tournament, snapping the reigning Wimbledon champion's string of 28 match victories.

And John McEnroe left Memphis, Tenn., Sunday $46,500 richer and winner of the U.S. national indoor tennis championships singles and doubles competitions

McEnroe, 21, teamed with Brian Gottfried to beat Rod Frawley and Tomas Smid 6-3, 6-7, 7-6 and claim the $13,000 top prize in the doubles. But it was McEnroe's earlier singles triumph over Jimmy Connors, a pulsating 7-6, 7-6 victory, that brought him a $40,000 reward.

Olympic heroes respond

By The Canadian Press

One week after whooping it up as Olympic heroes, Mark Johnson, Ken Morrow, Jim Craig and Dave Christian went to work in the National Hockey League.

"I'm a rookie — I've got a heck of a lot to learn," said Johnson, who made his debut with Pittsburgh Penguins and played a regular shift at forward in a 0-0 tie with New York Islanders.

"I don't think anybody expects us to work miracles," Morrow said after his second straight game as a defenceman with the Islanders, who lost 4-3 on their home ice to Detroit Red Wings on Saturday.

Craig started for Atlanta Flames Saturday in a 4-1 victory over Colorado Rockies while Christian scored a goal seven seconds after he took the ice for Winnipeg Jets in a 3-2 loss to Chicago Black Hawks.

Johnson didn't manage a shot on goal but he drew praise from his teammates and coach Johnny Wilson. Ditto Morrow and Christian, but the loudest hurrahs at the weekend came during Craig's debut.

For starters, Atlanta, despite bitter cold, rain and sleet, enjoyed its first sellout crow — 15,157 — of the season. Craig did not disappoint the overflow crowd, turning back 24 shots in backstopping the Flames' victory.

"I just didn't want the first shot on goal to go in," said Craig, a fourth-round draft pick of the Flames in 1977. "And it didn't."

The crowd cheered every move Craig made during the game.

He had almost no chance on the goal he allowed, an eight-foot blast of a rebound by Jack Valiquette.

Flames officials admitted the move was an attempt to bolster faltering attendance, which has fallen below an average of 10,000 persons a game. The club is reported to have lost $1 million the last two years and may be on the verge of leaving Atlanta.

"I'm tickled about his debut," said Flames coach Al MacNeil. "He looked good and didn't ever appear flustered. He did a job."

Not as pleased are members of the Quebec Nordiques. Quebec players held a special news conference in their dressing room to denounce the media after suffering a 4-3 loss to Los Angeles Kings Sunday.

Defenceman Dale Hoganson, acting as captain in place of the injured Robbie Ftorek, read a prepared statement to the media.

"We would prefer that the press stick to reporting about what we do on the ice and that they stay out of our personal lives," Hoganson said. "Despite what has appeared in the newspapers lately, there is absolutely no dissension on this team and we are unified in our goal to make the playoffs."

The Nordiques are hoping to avoid a repetition of last spring's events, when they quickly bowed out of the World Hockey Association playoffs amid rumors of dissension.

The statement was repeated in French by forward Richard Leduc.

Marc Tardif was indirectly responsible for the press conference in that it was several supposedly off-the-record comments made by teammates about his play this year — and published in a Montreal newspaper — which upset the team.

Victoria boxers earn honors

Victoria boxing clubs may not go heavy on quantity, but they're great in the quality department.

Four punchers went title-hunting at the weekend, two returned with the highest honors offered in a pair of tournaments.

Victoria Athletics' Gary Robinson, 17, captured the 139-pound division with a third-round technical knockout and was named "Golden Boy" in the Alberta Golden Gloves tournament at Edmonton.

Stablemate Cliff Ballendine, 14, racked up a pair of TKO's among his three victories, won the 112-pound title and was named "Silver Boy" in the B.C. Silver Gloves tournament at Port Kells.

Robbie Cousins and Paul DeLuca, both of Jayvees and the other Victorians participating in the Silver Gloves, were eliminated from competition in the first round.

Hoop teams find gold

Victoria teams swept both the men's and women's gold in basketball to spearhead a strong Vancouver Island showing as the second annual B.C. Winter Games wound up at the weekend.

Morriss Printing of Victoria defeated the Okanagan 37-30 and then stopped the Kootenays 38-20 Sunday to cap an unbeaten march in women's basketball while Victoria Masters, defeating Kamloops in the final, won the men's championship.

Morriss Printing, coached by Wally Yeamans, won all four of its games in women's play. Mary Coutts sparked the Printers with a 16-point performance in the final game.

Greater Victoria athletes also picked up a number of medals in other sports.

Barry Trumble led a strong showing in speedskating with gold-medal victories in the senior men's 400 and 800 metre events.

Rick Krupa won the boys' 13-14 200 metres, finished second in the 400 and third in the 600 while Stacy Blythe won the girls' 13-14 200 and placed second in the 300.

Mike Vanderlinden earned a silver in the 15 to 16 400.

In gymnastics, Susan Ross won the senior women's floor competition, finished second in the vault and added thirds in the uneven bars and beam to place second over-all.

Shirley Walker was second in the senior women's beam and third overall.

In badminton, Lyn Polson shared two medals. She partnered Brad Laughlin of Lake Cowichan to a gold in the mixed doubles and teammed up with Damaris Hurley to take a silver in the women's doubles.

Victorians also made their mark in the diving competition. In the "A" class, Arden Toutant won the 15-17 girls' crown while Kerry Mee was third. Robert John Gill won a bronze in the men's competition.

Wind a factor in winner's favor

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — "I'd say the wind was a factor," said Dave Eichelberger after battling 72 kilometre an hour gusts and a wind-chill factor of about -11 degrees to win the $300,000 Bay Hill golf tournament by three strokes over Leonard Thompson.

"But I feel like I have a lot better chance in the wind than under ideal conditions," added Eichelberger, 36, whose only previous victories in a 12-year professional career had been the Greater Milwaukee Open — twice.

Eichelberger had a three-over-par 74 Sunday for a 72-hole total of 279. Thompson also toured the wind-blown course in 74 and finished at 282.

Eichelberger led the last three rounds of the weather-plagued tournament played over Arnold Palmer's home course, a 7,119-yard layout which plays at par 71.

Heavy rains Saturday forced Eichelberger and Thompson and 28 other players to suspend play in the middle of the third round. They were on the course at 8 a.m. Sunday to conclude their 54 holes before going into the final 18.

"The main thing I was trying to do is just hit par on every hole," said the winner.

Scores soared with the wind on Sunday, with the high 70s and 80s common.

Tom Watson, the tour's leading money winner, finished in a three-way tie for 19th place with a 72-hole total of 293, while Jim Nelford of Burnaby slipped to a final-round 76 and finished at 296, worth $1,950.

Jan plays it safe

SUN CITY, Ariz. (AP) — Jan Stephenson played it safe on the final six holes and came home a one-shot winner in the first Sun City golf tournament.

Stephenson, 28, shot 71 Sunday for a 13-under par 275 total. She was one stroke better than late-charging M.J. Smith, who carded a birdie on the 18th to finish a stroke a head of Bonnie Lauer at 277.

The victory, Stephenson's first since 1978, was worth $15,000.

Stephenson led by one stroke after the first round, two after 36 holes, a stroke after 54 and then, after threatening the all-time LPGA scoring record, settled for her one-shot triumph.

The LPGA record is 17 under, set by Hollis Stacy in 1977.

Debbie Scott takes 'Bonnie Bell' event

Scott posted a time of 34 minutes, 16 seconds to win the event and a trip to the "Bonnie Bell" national final in October.

Cathy Twomey of Oregon Track Club, the pre-race favorite, led for the first five kilometres. Scott took over just before the six-kilometre mark and expanded the margin to nearly 200 metres over Twomey, who posted a time of 34:55, at the finish.

Another UVic competitor, Anita Sobon, was 39th.

Vikes tie ribbon on perfect mark

SASKATOON — University of Victoria Vikings applied a fancy-wrapping to their 1979-80 Canada West University Athletic Association regular-season basketball schedule Saturday.

The Ken Shields-coached Vikings became the first men's team to rack up an undefeated campaign, controlling all aspects of the game to thump the Saskatchewan Huskies 112-84. Vikings finished with a 20-0, won-lost record and the hapless Huskies were exactly opposite, 0-20.

Now the Vikings, second-ranked Canadian college team, return home to play Calgary Dinosaurs in a best-of-three CWUAA championship series, scheduled to open Friday at McKinnon Gymnasium.

Vikings were awesome on attack and in controlling the backboards. UVic snapped up 42 rebounds, including 21 by Gerald Kazanowski. Huskies grabbed only one offensive rebound and seven on defence.

UVic's reserves got plenty of floor time, but that didn't slow down Vikings' attack. If anything, it added to it as Ted Anderson hit for 27 points, Kazanowski 21, Rene Dolcetti 17, Mickey Welder and Bruce Hailton 14 apiece and Kelly Dukeshire 9.

Vikings, who turned in a mediocre effort in Friday's 81-72 victory over the Huskies, led 57-38 at the half were ahead by at least 20 points the rest of the way.

In Calgary, Jeff Markert scored 19 points and Romel Raffin 18 as the Dinosaurs clubbed Alberta Golden Bears 105-74.

In Lethbridge, CWUAA scoring champion Perry Mirkovich scored 31 to lead the Pronghorns to a 73-69 victory over UBC Thunderbirds. Mirkovich ended his five-year university career with 3,022 points.

Realtors were busy

Henderson Realty didn't have an easy time winning the Vancouver Island senior "B" men's basketball championship Sunday at the University of Victoria's old gymnasium.

In fact, they worked hard, playing five games in the same day to do it.

Henderson tripped Cuckoo Clock 90-71 in the final of the double-loss-elimination tournament to cap a comeback streak.

Chris Trumpy fired 18 points, Jim Duddridge canned 17 and Robbie Parris added 16 to lead Henderson, which had dropped an 88-84 decision to the same club earlier in the day.

After the loss, Henderson swept back with a 99-93 win over Nanaimo and a 110-85 decision over DataTech before handing Cuckoo Clock its first loss 95-89 and setting up the deciding game.

DataTech, which finished third in the tourney, had earlier eliminated Trilec Seniors 95-75 in the only other game of the day.

Henderson, Cuckoo Clock and DataTech now advance to the 16-team, double-loss-elimination British Columbia championship playoff March 28-30 in Kamloops.

Victoria First United Bombers clubbed Duncan 33-18 Saturday to claim the Vancouver Island midget girls' title in the final of a tourney at Mt. Douglas High School.

Duncan gained the final with a 29-24 win over Cordova Bay the same day while Bombers had gained a berth in the final with two wins Friday.

Western Equipment Juniors of Victoria defeated Vancouver Drake Trojans 88-81 in the first game of a best-of-three series for the B.C. junior men's title.

The series will conclude this weekend on the Mainland.

Meston's nip Cosmos, slip into playoff berth

Meston's Auto Body continued a rags-to-riches drive Sunday while clamping a hold on fourth place and the final playoff berth in the first division of the Vancouver Island Soccer League.

In other matches, University of Victoria Vikings blanked Castaways 3-0 at Blanshard Field and Powell River Villas and visiting Gorge battled to a 1-1 deadlock.

Meston's, a new entry in the first division this season, has chalked up a 5-1-1 record since Christmas and is 6-5-6 over-all.

Joe Mendonca scored on a penalty shot at 53 minutes for Meston's after Graeme Tolson was tripped in the goalmouth area. Gordie Reading recorded his fifth shutout of the season for Meston's.

Cosmo Royals had several scoring opportunities slip away, including a breakaway by Brock Cooper early in the match and a header by Bob Mackie that hit the post late in the game.

At Powell River, Graham Hollingsworth gave Villas an early lead by scoring off an indirect kick at 22 minutes but Mike Collis equalized for Gorge on a penalty shot during the final minute of play.

Crook, Shaw lead runners

Bruce "Gunner" Shaw won the men's event and Jan Crook, better known for her field hockey exploits, topped the women's division in the 13th annual Basil Parker cross-country races Saturday in Central Saanich.

Shaw covered the 10,000-metre men's course in a time of 34 minutes, 42 seconds to lead the Prairie Inn Hash House Harriers to the team title.

Spartex was second in the team event and Prairie Inn #2 was third.

Crook won the women's 5,000-metre event in 34:14 and was followed by Diane Pendray (34:39) and Suzi Carson (34:44).

UVic Vikettes won the women's team laurels, Dusty Sneakers were second and Prairie Inn third.

Bonnie Hutton won the junior women's race and set the fastest time in both classes at 30:56. Meghan Lambeth was second in 34:20 and Debra Sendrick was third in 42:05.

Taylor and quick Birds too much for Islanders

By MAX LOW

Well, the forward-play strategy of Vancouver Island Crimson Tide coach Don Burgess worked in the first half, but that was all.

Then the University of British Columbia Thunderbird backs took over with all their speed and raced to a 17-9 McKechnie Cup rugby win Saturday before about 400 fans at Royal Athletic Park.

Knowing what danger lurked in the boot of Canadian national team fullback Graham Taylor and what a threat Canadian rep Andrew Bibby is at centre, Burgess wanted his backs to kick the ball back in front of his more powerful forwards and hoped they would control the game from that department.

They did to a certain extent in the opening half and, in fact, clung to a 3-0 lead at halftime on flyhalf Pat Trelawny's penalty goal.

But what that strategy produced was 45 minutes of the dullest rugby seen here for a long time. It was typical cup rugby, played to win and not to entertain. Unfortunately, it didn't do either.

Burgess' three big problems were missing backs, the fact that his forwards weren't able to be quite so dominant as he had expected and; as he had anticipated — Taylor.

The big-kicking fullback booted a drop goal five minutes into the second half to even the score and that was the start of it for the Thunderbirds.

About 20 minutes later, Taylor burst into the backline and centred a beautiful kick, which Bibby took gracefully and dived over for a try.

Taylor did virtually the same thing again — and again — dashing in first to set left-winger John Olson up for a try and then sending up another of his clever little kicks for right-winger Roy Houlihan to score. Three tries in 10 minutes, one of them converted by Taylor, and suddenly the T-Birds were ahead 17-3.

The Tide kept on trying hard, though, and in the dying minutes big second-row forward Hans de Goede crashed over for a try after a push by the Island pack. Trelawny converted to make the final score 17-9.

Taylor was brilliant on the day, Burgess conceded after the game, but he said his own backline was disjointed after four of the seven selected were unable to play.

Fullback Jim Wenman's muscle injury kept him out, scrum-half Darryl Noulette was ill and both centre Paul Monahan and winger Jamie Hawthorne were unable to play. They were replaced by Murray Allen, who handled confidently at fullback, Ed McAuley at scrum-half, Brooke Smith at centre and Peter Kilshaw on the wing.

While all four probably played up to Tide standard, the cohesion and understanding was missing and this cost a couple of good scoring chances in the first half.

The win was the second for UBC, which earlier downed Fraser Valley 22-13, and the Birds need only to beat Vancouver Reps at the end of this month to retain the McKechnie Cup.

For the Tide, which edged Vancouver 10-7 first time out, there is still an outside hope of sharing the cup — if they beat Fraser Valley and if UBC loses to Vancouver. But if I were you, I wouldn't hold my breath.

I'd put my money on UBC!

Vampires nipped

Norm Thorne kicked two penalty goals to give Cowichan a 6-4 victory over Vampires during a Vancouver Island Rugby Union second division match Saturday in Duncan.

Ray Ramsey scored a try for Vampires.

In other games, James Bay Athletic Association dropped Oak Bay Wanderers 18-8 at Windsor Park and UVic Norsemen topped Royal Roads 26-23 at UVic.

Scott Avery booted two penalty goals and two converts to lead JBAA while Ken Wilke and Gerry Cadwallader scored tries. Richard Foster scored two tries for Wanderers.

Wales retains hopes by beating Scotland

CARDIFF, Wales (Reuter) — Wales stretched its unbeaten home record to 24 games in the Five Nations Rugby Union championship Saturday with a 17-6 win over Scotland.

Wales also went some way to restoring its reputation for skillful, sporting play, following allegations of dirty tactics in its previous clashes with France and England.

The victory leaves Wales a chance of sharing the championship with England, providing it beats Ireland in Dublin and England loses to Scotland in Edinburgh on March 15.

At Paris, France escaped the ignominy of four defeats in the Five Nations Rugby Union championship by edging Ireland 19-18 at the Parc des Princes.

Ireland was indebted to the deadly kicking of fly-half Ollie Campbell, who booted a conversion, three penalties and a drop goal for a tally of 14 points.

Spurs' boss fires coach

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — San Antonio Spurs' president Angelo Drossos, hoping to shake the two-time divisional champions out of their season-long slump, has fired coach Doug Moe and temporarily replaced him with manager Bob Bass.

Moe, 41, had led the explosive Spurs to two consecutive National Basketball Association Centra Division titles. But the team was mired this season at 33-33.

Celtics Island champs

NANAIMO — Cedar Hill Celtics captured the Vancouver Island junior high school girls' basketball championship in an all-Victoria final Saturday by defeating Colquitz, 31-25.

Trish Wellman scored 13 points to lead the Cedar Hill attack and Karen McEvoy added 12.

Two swimming titles for McKinlay

Neil McKinlay of Victoria Olympians collected two gold medals at the weekend to lead a strong showing by local competitors at the British Columbia winter short-course swim championships at Crystal Pool.

McKinlay, a 14-year-old competing in the 13 and 14 age bracket, won the 1,500-metre freestyle with a time of 17 minutes, 8.94 seconds — only nine seconds off the Olympic standard — and collected another gold in the 200-metre freestyle with a time of 2:5.72.

He also collected a silver in the 400 individual medley, finishing a close second to Ryan Sprague of Richmond Aquanauts.

Simon Bicknell of Victoria Flying "Y" captured seven medals in the 10-and-under bracket. He won the 100 backstroke in 1:20.89, collected silvers for second-place finishes in the 100 and 200 individual medleys, the 50 backstroke and 100 breaststroke; and grabbed bronzes for thirds in the 50 and 100 freestyle races.

Wayne Bonsdork of Olympians earned three silvers in the 13 and 14 100 and 200 breaststrokes and the 50 freestyle.

Rob Dyke of Juan de Fuca Cohoes collected a gold in the 11 and 12 200 butterfly with a 2:36.13 clocking while clubmate Sharlene Loughridge earned a bronze in the 10-and-under girls' 100 butterfly.

Two members of the Duncan Aquannis Swim Team — Mike Paras and Kurt Vollmerhause — also earned medals. Paras won a silver in the 11 and 12 100 backstroke and bronzes in the 50 and 200 freestyle events while Vollmerhause won a silver in the 10-and-under 200 freestyle and a bronze in the 100 backstroke.

McKinlay, Bonsdorf and Paras were selected to a 24-member British Columbia team scheduled to compete against Alberta in a dual meet Saturday and Sunday in Cranbrook.

Davis won the 100 freestyle with a time of 52.89, just beating the national qualifying standard of 52.90, and finished second in the 50 freestyle. Davis, accompanied by coach Mark Felner, will be competing in the Canadian championships starting March 12 in Toronto.

Bonny Robertson of Olympians recorded two seconds and a third while clubmate Cheryl Grant had a second and two thirds in the senior girls' class.

Hyack of New Westminster won the team title with 2,326 points while Canadian Dolphins of Vancouver was runner-up with 2,166.

IF There is a Persian rug on the floor, what does that tell you about the owner? Probably that he is well off. Also, he'll be a secure person because a Persian rug is a good saleable item in these inflation-ridden times. It is easier to sell expensive Oriental carpets today in a sluggish economy than it was in the 1950s and 60s, although the average price of an authentic Oriental carpet has greatly increased in recent years. An Oriental rug is an excellent hedge against inflation because its value increases constantly. The reason for this is the increased wealth and industrialization of Mid-East countries. Weavers and master artists are leaving their traditional work and are entering industrial employment, in addition the Government of Iran has introduced compulsory education thereby effectively eliminating the employment of children in rug weaving, says Ejaz Khan of Bokhara Carpet Palace. Mr. Khan will be displaying excellent selection of Persian carpets and rugs that will appeal to the discriminating and budget conscious home decorator and art lover offered to you at Bargain Prices. Mr. Khan invites you to come and investigate the opportunities provided by Oriental carpets, to make an investment that safeguards your money and provides you with luxury as it appreciates.

Jazz station on the air

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's first jazz radio station was born here this weekend after a gestation period of four years and its parents are crossing their fingers that the infant survives.

CJAZ, a 24-hour FM station owned by Toronto-based Selkirk Broadcasting, went on the air at midnight Friday night with a formidable list of problems to overcome. The fledgling station is broadcasting 100,000 watts of power via a transmitter in the Gulf Islands west of Vancouver.

Under government rules, set by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission, a substantial part of the music will have to be from Canada.

Why go to a Disco if you can't dance?

We're not saying that it's not fun to watch. Or that discos don't offer some interesting diversions besides dancing.

But it's so much more fun when you can join in. And have other people cast admiring glances at you.

So why sit there wishing you were having fun? Arthur Murray's can have you dancing in no time at all.

Take your first dance step today. Stop by Arthur Murray's. Or give us a call. A disco can be lots more fun when you can dance.

Brott: impeccable, but passionless

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Boris Brott, son of a distinguished musical family, is one of Canada's premiere young conductors.

At 35 he has already earned many distinctions. In the 10 years that he has been conductor of the Hamilton Philharmonic he has caused that orchestra to become among the most respected in Canada.

This week he is in Victoria guest conducting the current pair of Victoria Symphony concerts with Canadian mezzo soprano Carrol Anne Curry as soloist.

Throughout the program, which begins with Mozart's overture to The Marriage of Figaro, contains Poulenc's one-person opera, La Voix Humaine and concludes with the Beethoven 'Eroica' Symphony, Brott reveals a clear, concise, energetic but disciplined conducting style.

His purpose is unquestionable from outset to completion, his vitality so focussed that not an atom is lost in being conveyed to the orchestra.

And the orchestra, schooled to a new ensemble strength and responsiveness this season, proves a worthy instrument for such purpose and vitality.

Brott's refined classicism is amply demonstrated in both the orchestral works; a spirited Mozart, polished and precise with phrasing of impeccable moulding and clarity; a Beethoven with every 'i' dotted and every 't' crossed, carefully balanced as to dynamics and ideal as to tempi.

In fact the Beethoven could be said to be authoritative in its technical mastery and classical correctness. But it is cool. The humanity and passion of Beethoven does not emerge.

Even the Funeral March movement, so dynamically accurate and technically assured, remains detached, lacking essential pull on the emotions of the listener.

That rarity, a one-act, one-person opera, La Voix Humaine was composed by Francis Poulenc using a text by French playwright Jean Cocteau. A woman has been abandoned by her lover who is going to marry another woman. A desperate telephone monologue with her unseen lover on the other end of the line comprises the opera.

The work is a tour de force for a mezzo soprano. The scene is pleasingly set on the Royal stage before the orchestra, which establishes a pulsing rhythm, provides the intervals with dramatic commentary and reinforces climaxes with a passion of its own.

What is demanded by this work is an expressive voice that is also technically superior and flexible in range. On top of which the singer must have a strong dramatic sense.

In all of these areas Curry is superb. Many operatic roles, both at home and abroad, have made her a competent actress so that she conveys with her body as well as with a lovely, strong warm mezzo, a minutely shaded range of emotions.

The virtuosity and reality of her performance is such that one is never made aware of technical detail; only of despair, momentary false gaiety, anger, grief and ultimate tragedy. Curry's art supervenes any language barrier that exists.

Hers is a sustained and remarkable performance of high artistry.

Du Maurier grants

MONTREAL (CP) — The du Maurier Council for the Performing Arts has allocated $224,000 in grants to 37 Canadian organizations for projects during the 1980-81 season.

The largest individual grants go to the Toronto Symphony and the Montreal Symphony Orchestra, which receive $20,000 each. The Vancouver Symphony Society has been granted $17,000 and the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra $13,000.

The Hamilton Philharmonic Society and the Calgary Philharmonic Orchestra get $8,000 each; the Edmonton Symphony Society and the New Play Centre in Vancouver, $7,000.

$4.5M theatre planned

By AB KENT

Plans are well advanced to give University of Victoria theatre students their first permanent stages, shops and rehearsal studios in a $4.5 million home opposite the Maclaurin Building.

The board of governors have approved submitting the proposal to Universities Minister Pat McGeer and it's hoped tenders will be called in early April.

If construction starts in June, the academic theatre building should be ready for use in August, 1981.

The project will allow the theatre department to move out of its army hut home, where it has centred for some 15 years on the 150-seat Phoenix Theatre.

Planners refer to the latest project as an academic theatre building because its three, 200-seat performance halls and several studios are designed for teaching purposes.

Architect Alan Lester said scenery and costume shops will be full size and their lighting and sound systems are being designed by a theatre consultant from London, England.

One theatre will have a conventional proscenium stage, allowing for the flys and drops required for scenery arrangements. The second will have a thrust stage suitable for classical and Shakespearean theatre and the third will be an arrangeable room, or black box, designed for modern and experimental productions.

Storage and dressing rooms, a design studio, a theatre history project room, a box office and a lounge and faculty offices will complete the building.

Lester said final planning for the exterior has not been settled.

Opening lead — two of diamonds.

Here is an extraordinary hand played many years ago by Lee Hazen, New York expert and counsel for the American Contract Bridge League. He was East, and South got to six spades on the bidding shown. West led a diamond and here is Hazen's account of what happened after that, as related by him in the Bridge World magazine.

"I was of course disappointed when declarer ruffed the opening lead. South then went into a long trance and finally emerged from it by cashing the ace of hearts and leading the ten of spades next.

"My partner discarded a heart and I reacted like the typical young lawyer I was. The first thing you learn in law school is to be suspicious. You spend several hours a day being suspicious of people, of things and of ideas. If you're really good at it, you eventually develop the ability to be just abstractly suspicious.

"I found it easy to be suspicious at this particular moment. What was declarer trying to do to me? I didn't bother to work it out. I just knew that if declarer wanted me to take the ten of spades it couldn't be good for me to oblige him. So I played the three and stared at declarer with a cold legal eye.

"South went into a new trance and then led the A-K of clubs. By now I was carried away by the spirit of the thing. I had refused one trump trick, and nobody was going to bully me into taking another.

"So I discarded a heart instead of ruffing. South struggled quietly for a while but eventually went down one."

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Pressure, responsibility, legal technicalities figure prominently. Capricorn, Cancer persons play significant roles. Protect rights. Hold off on decisions, where possible. You get vote of confidence from partner or mate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Finish what you start, tie loose ends, avoid needless controversy, steer away from direct confrontations. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently. You can improve special services and enhance your own value.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with creativity, change, special associations, children, imprinting your own style. Leo, Aquarius persons play key roles. You make valuable, new contact. You are on path to more independence.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on security, property, ability to perceive potential. Seek valid appraisal. Be thorough, see places and people in realistic light. Older individual could aid in closing important transaction — if you make minor concession.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Puzzle pieces fall into place — special message, call clears the air. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Expand base of operations. You will have reason to be optimistic. Short journey may be necessary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emphasis on income, locating missing items, taking stock of position. Deal with one who cooperates, but will not compromise principles. Message will become increasingly clear. Review and revision may be necessary.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Cycle moves up, circumstances favor your efforts. You will be at right place; take initiative, welcome opportunity for creative change. Member of opposite sex is on your side and proves it. Gain possible through written material.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Restrictions are temporary—so is "confinement." Being alone is not same as being lonely—that lesson is driven home. You become reacquainted with yourself. New insights are gained in connection with one who is hospitalized or handicapped.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Study Scorpio message. Clandestine "conference commands attention. Define terms, look behind scenes, discern motives. One "in charge" gives you benefit of doubt. Romance, special, correspondence dominates scenario.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19): Emphasis on authority, responsibility, honor, standing in community, gains resulting from business acumen. Another Capricorn—and the number 8—figure prominently. Past efforts, contacts pay dividends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You strike chord of universal appeal. You are better able to present your product—and yourself. Aries, Cancer, Libra natives figure prominently. Communicate, pursue educational-publishing projects. Long-range view is essential.

PISCES (Feb. 19—Mar. 20): Setback boomerangs — you have chance to "start over." Leo, Virgo, Aquarius persons figure in scenario. Emphasis on dreams, predictions, money mystery and physical attraction. Your vitality is back!

IF MARCH 4 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are independent, perceptive, considered attractive and unorthodox. You were physically or psychologically apart from one or both parents at an early age. Scorpio, Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. October could be your most productive month of 1980, a year highlighting terms, illusions, romance, special activity connected with clubs, organizations, the media. You make serious life style or domestic adjustment next month. Also, in April, you make amends to family member for recent misunderstanding. Home can become a more harmonious place.

'Secret' Greenpeace plan aimed at seal hunt

VANCOUVER (CP) — Greenpeace Foundation is planning a secret move to disrupt the Newfoundland seal hunt, which has just started, Greenpeace director Pat Moore says.

"It's so secret that I don't even know the details."

Moore said Canadians will be involved but the protest is being co-ordinated at the Boston office of Greenpeace.

"As a Canadian environmentalist it's not pleasant to be against the seal hunt," he said. "The government does its best to discredit you. The seal protection regulations are a sham and a farce — all they do is protect the seal hunter. The seal hunt is Canada's mini-Gulag Archipelago on the ice floes."

Moore said Canadians have less interest in protesting against the Newfoundland seal hunt than do foreigners.

"The Canadian seal hunt is the single largest environmental fund-raising issue in Australia," he said. "No one defends the seal hunt outside Canada but in this country most of the (news) media seem to favor it."

He said Greenpeace members can't create a focal point for protest at the hunt this year because many members are tired of being arrested, tried, fined and burdened with enormous costs relating to the protests.

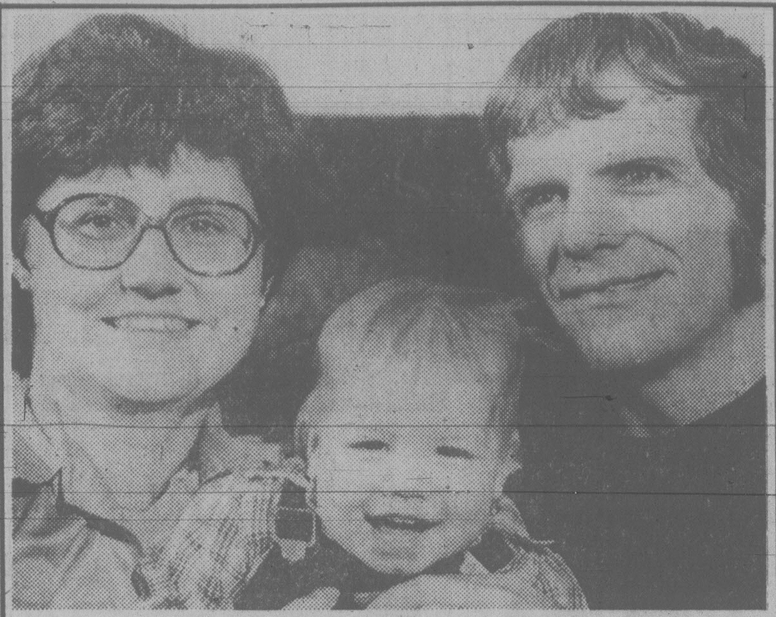
"Some people think it's our job to stop the hunt," he said. "But it's the government's job. Our job is to create a situation where the political system responds to public opposition."

Sunday, in St. John's, Newfoundland, sealing ships bound for the front got a rousing sendoff after an ecumenical blessing of the fleet on the St. John's waterfront.

"Not a protester in sight," said a policeman, who, along with a score or more of his fellows, was circulating among a crowd of between 1,200 and 1,500.

Five of the six-vessel Canadian fleet licensed to take seals in the drifting ice field known as the front were in port for the ceremony but did not actually begin their northern voyages Sunday.

The Canadian vessels are licensed to take 46,500 of the total 180,000 harp seal quota for the northwest Atlantic. Three Norwegian ships licensed for the front have a quota of 20,000. Vessels from both countries also share a quota of 15,000.



Lucky miner Swayda with wife and son, James

Hopper roof cheated death of fifth victim

He didn't know it then, but the fact he was the only man of the six-man crew standing to the left of the hopper car saved his life Thursday morning.

He was one of two men who survived the worst mining accident in Grande Cache's 10-year history. Willie Morton was saved by the thick, steel-plated roof on the mechanical coal digger he was operating. The other four men on the crew were crushed between tons of coal and twisted steel girder.

Sitting in his home Saturday with his wife Margaret and their 14-month old baby at his side, Swayda, 31, recounted his experience that day, 140 metres below ground in the Reiff-Terrace shaft.

"Everything was quite normal, but for some reason I was looking up at the ceiling for cracks. I glanced over to the other side and I saw something move. Then it all came with a roar, that's all.

"A rock hit me a glancing blow to the head and I went down choking. I kicked my legs loose and tried to crawl out but there was still a lot of banging and pieces of the ceiling were still falling.

"Then everything went quiet and I just scrambled out. I hollered for the guys but there was no answer."

Four of Swayda's co-workers were found dead the next day: chief engineer Alwyn Gill, 44, Thomas Mathews, 23, David Thomas, 43, and Paul Wilbur, 38.

Swayda has vowed to himself he won't work at the face — the end of the shaft where the coal is being torn away — anymore. And he hopes to leave underground work for a while.

But he won't give up mining.

"It's hard to give up when it's your life."

Two more Reye's cases

TORONTO (CP) — Two cases of Reye's Syndrome, a rare illness affecting the liver, brain and other organs, have been confirmed at the Hospital for Sick Children and a third child also may have the disease, the hospital's chief physician said Sunday.

Dr. David Carver said the diagnosis in the third case has not been confirmed.

The cases are unrelated and there is no epidemic, he said.

He said the three children — aged two, 14 and 15 — were admitted during the last week after suffering upper respiratory infections.

Other Toronto emergency departments have been alerted to watch for the disease, which affects children from birth to about 17 and generally strikes when a child is beginning to get over a mild viral infection such as influenza or chicken pox.

R. Buckminster Fuller — scientist, philosopher, enviornmentalist and developer of the revolutionary geodesic dome — is off on a new intellectual journey. He announced he's forming an architectural firm in Cleveland to develop energy self-sufficient structures. Says the 84-year-old, "We really have an option on our planet to have everybody enjoying a high standard of living, instead of having the have-nots pull everybody down."

Joan Emuch, a 23-year-old secretary, wanted to be treasurer-clerk of Enosburg Falls, Vt., but was excluded from the race because she rents an apartment and is not a landowner. So she has bought two cemetery plots. But Village Moderator Garnett Harvey said the two plots do not constitute ownership of property under local law and ruled her name will not be allowed on the ballot for tomorrow's town meeting. Emuch said she is not angry but feels "let down." She said she will keep the $150 cemetery plots for herself and her future husband.

Fuller

Guitarist Ron Wood of the Rolling Stones rock music band and his girlfriend have been deported from the Caribbean island of St. Maarten after spending five days in jail when police found cocaine in their apartment. "I think we were victims of a hassle," said Wood just before leaving for California.

Police said Wood and Josephine Carslake were ordered off the island when it could not be firmly established how they came into possession of nine ounces of cocaine, worth about $3,000.

The couple had denied buying the drugs, police said.

There's a sour note between two of the Andrews Sisters and they'll never do a stint together again, The Daily News says. The sisters — Patty, Maxene and LaVerne — had their spats even in their Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy heyday in the 1940s. And Patty and Maxene kept at it after LaVerne's death in 1967. They haven't spoken in six years, says Patty, who's appearing at Les Mouches in New York City. She blames Maxene for causing the trouble that cancelled a national tour of Over Here. "She wanted to renegotiate the contract," Patty said. "After several of those meetings, they (the producers) posted the closing notices. I can't put up with Maxene's dirty tricks any more. . . . Maxene and I will never get back again. What else can I say?"

Dear Abby:

I have never needed advice so badly in my life, and you are the only one I can turn to. My married daughter is pregnant with her second child and is planning to have natural childbirth this time. She and her husband have been going for "lessons." It sounds very far out to me, but if that's their choice, it's all right with me. But, Abby, she plans to have her 3-year-old son watch the delivery! Her husband will be present at the birth, and she also has invited her 19-year-old unmarried sister to witness the whole business! Lord help me! I had all I could do to keep from getting hysterical when she told me this.

Abby, do you think a 3-year-old child can handle something like this? Even a 19-year-old unmarried girl might not be able to handle it. I get sick at the thought of it.

We are conservative people, and I have raised my daughters to be modest, so this is a terrible shock to me.

What do you think of this whole business?

Appalled in K.C.

Dear Appalled:

There is no better way to learn about the miracle of life than to witness childbirth. I see nothing shocking or immodest about it. And a 3-year-old child should find it a fascinating and educational experience.

Dear Abby:

Remember me? I'm Abe Puchkoff (age 83) from Brooklyn. Ever since my name appeared in your column last summer, I've had letters and phone calls from all over the country.

How's this for a story? When I was a 27-year-old bachelor, a pretty girl caught my eye. I called her for a date, but she played hard to get, so that ended that.

Well, last Saturday my phone rang, and this very same lady (only 56 years later) said, "Is this Abe Puchkoff?"

I said, "Yes, that's me."

When she told me who she was, I nearly fainted. Then she said, "I saw your name in Dear Abby's column. I've been a widow for 20 years. How would you like to take me out to lunch?"

I very politely said, "It's not good for us to see each other so often." Then I added, "Besides, with God's help, my wife and I will celebrate our 50th this June."

Abe Puchkoff

Dear Abe:

Thanks for another day-brightener. And mazeltov!

Dear Abby:

I am making plans for my wedding. My father has cancer and I would like to put a note in the wedding invitations: "Send no gift, but give a donation to the Cancer Society."

Daddy's Girl

Dear Girl:

I know you mean well, and I sympathize. But I think such a note would be inappropriate.

So Indians have no sense of humor?

It would be very nice indeed if I had a dollar for every person who, with a perfectly straight face, has told me that Indians have no sense of humor. Ho-ha-ha, and Ho-ho-ho! That's the best joke of the season. For humor both robust and subtle, let me commend you to the dignified, courteous native brother who rubs shoulders amiably with the whites in this favored preserve.

There is, for instance, Sarah, who a few evenings ago, told us one of the jokes that has been titilating listeners on the Indian circuit.

Sarah enjoys the all-but-unique distinction of being a teacher of the Kwakwala language. This is not a dialect, or a bastard hodgepodge of French, English and Indian like the Chinook jargon, but a full-fledged tongue spoken by the proud Kwakiutl people whose lands range from Cape Mudge north along the coast to Fort Rupert.

Sarah's days are occupied with teaching Kwakwala to privileged Campbell River school children — a pursuit which she enlivened by staging a salmon barbecue for some of her pupils a while ago. For two evenings each week, Sarah labors to impart Kwakwala to a little group of adults enrolled in a North Island College course.

("The children get the little short words," says Sarah dryly, standing behind me while I gape at a page of tongue-twisters which I must pronounce. "You're grown up, so you get the long ones." She taps my shoulder. "All right. Let's hear them!")

Sarah's lessons are spiced with tales of her village childhood. It was during one of these turnings-away from the rigorous business of learning a difficult language that Sarah told us the joke.

Two Indians . . . call them Paul and Elbert . . . were travelling by gasboat when their occasions took them into a river mouth. They chugged on up to the head of navigation. Then, in the shadows of late evening, they left the boat and started up an overgrown riverside trail.

The shadows deepened. Night hauled down. It was spooky country: the pair moved warily, peering ahead in hope of spotting the lights of the village they sought.

Suddenly Paul stopped so abruptly that Elbert bumped into him. Something was rustling in the brush alongside the trail.

Paul whirls. As he passes Elbert, galloping all-out, he cries, "Run for your life! It's a Sasquatch!"

Elbert lights out after Paul. They don't pause until they are safe on board their boat. Then Elbert wipes his sweating forehead and gives Paul a puzzled look.

"Hey," he demands. "What's a Sasquatch?"

Indians not only love to tease out a joke, milking it of all its lively juices. They also like to laugh at it, and by this I don't mean mere discreet tittering or giggling. Indian laughter is hearty, full-bodied and uninhibited.

I said that Indian humor can be subtle. In token thereof, come with me to a Dance of the Animal Kingdom, staged in the course of a Salmon Festival on the Campbell River foreshore by a gifted Kwakiutl artist.

During a pause in the dancing, several band elders in red-and-blue ceremonial capes decked with pearl buttons roved among the audience. They carried baskets, from which they distributed small gifts to the spectators.

Said the master of ceremonies, deadpan:

"It's the white man's way at a gathering to take up a collection. But that's not the Indian way! We prefer to give presents."

This kind of ribbing goes on continually when Indian and white foregather. In fact, there's much about white manners and mores that the Indian finds excruciatngly funny. But his never-failing courtesy is such that the fact is rarely acknowledged by more than the gentlest of nudges.

Consider, for example, another Indian joke that's good for a chuckle by the kwakiutl fires.

QUESTION:

What does the Indian family unit consist of?

ANSWER:

Mother, father, brother, sister, and anthropologist!

Balance of power

Initial burst of energy at the first signs of spring can leave a youngster drained of energy to carry on the day's play. Ten-year-old Tony Puzzuoli needed a rest in order to power his bicycle some more so he plopped down on one of the teeter-totters at a Windsor park.

Mid-life split is more traumatic

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — For 23 years he was the perfect husband. Didn't smoke, didn't drink, didn't run around. Gave her a car for her 40th birthday. Sentimental fool, he called himself.

And then one night he rolled over in bed and mentioned casually that he'd like a divorce. The sooner the better, if she didn't mind.

"It shocked the life out of me," said the man's wife. "I always thought he was the best man in the world and thought we had the best marriage."

"The request came entirely out of the blue. Can you imagine the shock? I can't imagine the shock ever going away."

There is another wife — scars long healed — who remembers the day her husband came home from work with the revelation that his life was in shambles. He wanted a chance to do all the things he hadn't time for when the children were small. He wanted, she said, his freedom.

"I had one kid home from college, another in the hospital and a love sick daughter blasting ballads from her stereo," she said.

"The living room was half painted, I was holding a pot roast, and after 28 years of marriage he wanted his freedom. I simply couldn't believe it."

It seems divorce and separation at mid-life — until now so unexpected — can be more traumatic than at any other age.

And 40 to 50-year-old women often are the shocked recipients — not the calm instigators — of divorce.

They've been out of the job market for years, are financially dependent on their spouses, and have little self-esteem when it comes to their employment value.

One woman, separated five months, bitterly claims that Ontario's 1978 Family Law Reform Act has done nothing to ease her plight. Her husband, living in a $400-a-month Windsor apartment, is five months behind in the mortgage.

She can't sell the house because it's jointly owned, and the act clearly states that husband and wife must both sign a sales' agreement.

She can't get a job because of a physical handicap. She can't live on the $40 she receives every two weeks from welfare. And she can't receive interim support until the court decides she's entitled.

"I'm hogtied," she said. "Right now I'm sitting here wondering what the courts will consider family assets.

"We made our investments in antiques. Will they be considered a joint asset? Or my husband's hobby. How can I prove we sacrificed other things so he could pursue his interests? If he doesn't want to give me any money, how can I make him?"

You can't, said lawyer Sharman Bondy. "If one party wants to fight it out, you can get yourself tangled in a pretty nasty court case."

Said Craig Perkins, policy developer in the Ontario attorney-general's office: "I doubt she'll be able to claim his hobby as part of her assets. It's arguable when they've been used strictly for esthetic purposes."

Both Ms. Bondy and Perkins say that there's a solution to the immediate cash-flow problem. The court, can, for instance, file an interim order to make sure that the needy spouse is taken care of by garnisheeing a husband's wages, demanding he post security, or filing an interim order preventing the husband from wasting, destroying or selling the family assets.

But therein lies the problem: It can take several months for a case to get to court. And how do you live in the meantime?

"You don't," said one ex-wife, who goes to court in March seeking child support.

"It's been two years since he last paid, and I don't hold much hope," she said. "The court kept making orders, but he kept refusing to pay."

"What kind of system is that? After 17 years of marriage, I think our children deserve more."

The lawyers and policy makers admit there's a problem, and blame it on the discrepancies between the provincial Family Law Reform Act and the federal divorce regulations.

The Ontario act, the first real provincial legislation to make division of family assets equal, works well for young couples who have their own incomes, but older women have expressed concern about their status under the act, authorities say.

Most youngsters outgrow asthma

By DR. BOB YOUNG

It is a long held medical maxim that an asthmatic child will outgrow his or her disease. This impression is essentially true. Seventy per cent of asthmatic children will be free of symptoms by the ages of 10, and 90 per cent will have no symptoms by the time they reach high school.

This is fortunate, as the commonest chronic illness of childhood is bronchial asthma. Between five and 10 per cent of children have asthma, and this disease accounts for fully 11 per cent of all chronic illness in children. Almost a quarter of recurrent or long-term absenteeism from school is due to this disease.

It is also fortunate that asthma in children while causing considerable distress and upset in a child's life, is seldom fatal. In medical terms it has a high incidence but a low mortality.

In most cases the symptoms of wheezing and periodic shortness of breath occur before the age of five. There are many other diseases of the respiratory tract in young children that have to be distinguished from true ashtma, and this may be difficult to do.

Symptoms such as a runny nose, cough, watery eyes, and the occurence of "cold after cold" are common, and the disease pattern may have to develop over a few years before a confident diagnosis of asthma can be made.

A family history of allergic disease helps make the diagnosis. It is often difficult to identify the specific item or items that the child is allergic to — allergy tests are often not dependable in this age group.

Sometimes a clue is obtained when emotional reactions such as tears, laughter, or anger trigger an attack, or when breathing difficulty follows exercise.

Although some tests are available to help make the diagnosis, they are not infallable. Often the best way to confirm the suspicion that asthma is present is to try a course of treatment.

Treatment is effective, with many useful drugs being available. Some children will continue to suffer from asthma as adults, but the numbers are not large. The majority of adult asthmatics develop the disease during their adult years, and were not asthmatic as children.

Equality before God

Ruth Scott led fight for women priests

"I've never thought of myself as a fighter, but when I believe in something I stick to it and go after it."

That, in her own words, gives you the reason Ruth Scott worked so long and so tirelessly to see women ordained as priests in the Anglican Church of Canada.

She started that crusade as principal of the Anglican Women's Training College in Toronto and continued it, even more vigorously, after retirement to Victoria in 1967.

"I was elected a member, and then vice-president, of the British Columbia Synod, which represents six dioceses," she told me.

"That led, in 1973, to being named the first woman delegate from this province to the General Synod of Canada.

"In turn, this afforded me an opportunity to carry a resolution to the General Synod, asking for the ordination of women."

After lengthy discussion the motion was passed at that gathering and during the next General Synod in 1975, it was ratified.

The following year, ordination of women into the priesthood, commenced.

At the initial ceremony in Chetwynd, B.C., Ruth Scott gave the address and so became the first woman to act in that capacity at an ordination ceremony.

"The door is open and they can now perform all the duties and assume various offices within the church on an equal basis with men," Miss Scott explains.

While the ordination of female priests ranks high among her successful endeavors, it is by no means the only crusade she has waged on behalf of women within the church.

As a staff member of Mildmay Institute, which was under the auspices of Deaconess House, she worked to better conditions for deaconesses in isolated communities of Manitoba, Alberta and the Yukon.

Deaconesses accepted complete responsibility for their parishes.

They organized and worked with all age groups, taught Sunday School, prepared and gave sermons, arranged parish meetings and coordinated all programs.

In order to visit many of their parishioners, they often travelled long distances on foot, horseback, by canoe or in antiquated automobiles.

Actually a deaconess had all the duties of a preacher but was denied the right to administer full Communion or to give the Benediction.

Ruth Scott set out to change that decree. She took time from her own work to visit those isolated parishes, talk to the deaconesses and to come back with authentic information on their round-the-clock dedication.

Through her persistence, these women eventually received better recognition within the church and in some instances, were given the right to perform the Sacraments.

Now, with ordination, they have finally achieved full and equal recognition.

With Miss Scott's guidance, changes were also made at the training college, among them the discarding of a mandatory uniform of navy blue dress with white collar.

Not only did students at AWTC represent dioceses within the Anglican Church in Canada, they came from churches with national standing in other parts of the world.

"We had women with us from Japan, India, Jamaica and even from China, before the revolution," she recalls.

"They were trained, as were our Canadian girls, to do parish and social work and to take on church duties in isolated places in their own countries.

"It was a two-way street. We learned from them and they from us."

This indefatigable worker for women's equality within the Anglican church, came to Canada from England's Northumberland in the mid-1920s; took secondary education and normal school training in Toronto and then taught for a year in Mackay Indian Industrial School at The Pas in northern Manitoba.

During the years that followed she completed a deaconess diploma course, took a two-year course at the Institute of Child Studies and then joined the staff of Deaconess Training House, forerunner of the AWTC.

She gained her Licentiate in Theology from Wycliffe College in 1946, the first woman to be granted a title and a degree from that college. And while dean of studies at AWTC up-graded her education with a B.A. and a B.D. from London University.

In 1955 Miss Scott was named principal at AWTC and from then until retirement she played a leading role in its growth and development, including a successful and vigorous campaign for new buildings to house classrooms, library and other necessary facilities.

Today that college is co-educational, a move Ruth Scott sees as bringing equality within the church, not only to women but also to men.

Ask her why no woman as yet has been ordained a priest within the Anglican diocese here and she points out that at the moment there is no need for it.

In this diocese, she says, there are any number of retired male priests from other places in Canada, well qualified to help wherever needed.

She does predict however that the time will come when women priests will be needed here.

And she vows "when it does come you can be sure I will work to see them ordained."

Postscript — As well as being on the B.C. Diocesan Board, Ruth Scott has been a member of the diocesan executive council, the program committee and the liturgical committee.

Also chairman of the provincial administration and finance committee and a member of the national executive council, the committee on the ministry and the doctrine and worship committee.

She was the first woman to hold the position of prolocutor of the B.C. provincial council and at present, is the first and only woman director of the Anglican Foundation of Canada.

This box is a special gift in itself

By Kay Faryon

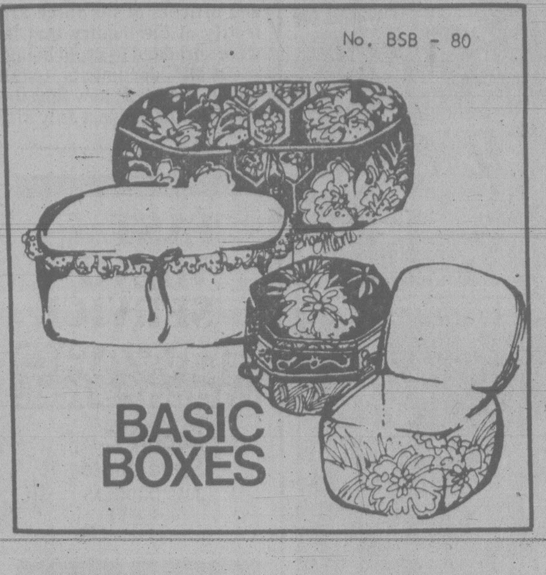
Are you a collector? Most people are of something or other. For me, it's boxes. Every time I pass a flea market or an antique shop, it seems the boxes are all saying, "Buy me!" For years, I've also been interested in fabric covered boxes. The latest thing today is soft boxes, boxes made entirely of fabric and stuffed with soft polyester fibrefill. They are simply luscious!

I first learned of them while speaking to another quilter-shop owner, Diane Kindall, of Molalla Fabrics in Molalla, Oregon. She said her daughter had a thriving business producing these lovely boxes out of calico and lace, floral appliques and pretty ribbons. As we compared notes, she mentioned that she stocked lots of lace for her customers so that they could design their own boxes. I asked if her daughter could send me some samples, which she did. They are absolutely lovely.

Not only is the outside pretty as a picture, but the inside also has beautiful fabric. It is just the thing for giving to someone as an extra special gift.

Boxes can be left out on display, or tucked away in drawers or suitcases for transporting very special things such as lingerie, stockings, jewellery, photos; love letters, Christmas ornaments, silverware, recipes, "junk", shells, as well as collections — of thimbles, spoons, buttons, sewing things, tatting . . . etc., etc., etc.

Once you have seen the finished product, your imagination will soar with all sorts of new possibilities for sizes, shapes and uses. Fabrics can be anything from a lovely Oriental silk to a suede, calico, gingham, velvet, brocade, satin, etc.



The basic pattern and technique are very simple. Betty Mason, who exhibited her handicrafts at the recent quilt show in Houston (December '79) has written a book all about 'Boxing'. In it she talks about Firm-Soft Boxes and True Soft-Boxes. She gives tips on machine embroidery, Seminole Patchwork techniques, Log Cabin-style boxes, Christmas and Easter baskets, Picnic Baskets, as well as decorating your boxes with tiny mirrors, lace, applique, and photographs. The book takes you completely into the world of boxes. Not only that, it's a fun book — I'm sure you'll agree 'Boxing' is fun.

If you've ever seen a child toss away a Christmas present and play with the box, you'll understand how, as Betty says, "The Box is The Thing!"

Happenings: The Edmonton Exhibition Association (Edmonton Northlands) in conjunction with Klondike Days being held from July 16-26, 1980, has expended its handicraft and culinary program under the name Design For Living. They will hold a quilting contest, the categories of which will be: Applique (Hand-quilted), Patchwork (Hand-quilted), Cross-stitch or Embroidered (Hand-quilted) Quilt (Machine-sewn and quilted), Quilt (pieced and tied), Crib or Youth Bed Quilt (Hand-quilted), Quilting (hand or machine, any other article). Although the prizes range only up to $30.00, the honor of winning is indeed great. Since this is Alberta's 75th Anniversary year, there will be a special quilt category, with the 75th anniversary as the theme. The inimum size is 80"x100" (about 2m x 2.5 m). First prize is $75, second is $50, and third is $25. In addition, the winning quilt is to be purchased by Edmonton Northlands for $300, and will be presented to a distinguished Albertan.

Well, ladies — there's the challenge. The Edmonton area, especially the Provincial Museum, doesn't have nearly the collection of old quilts as does the Glen Bow in Calgary. Hopefully, this situation will be changed in years to come as more and more quilting Albertans contribute to the Alerta heritage. When making your quilts, think historically — Sign and Date your Quilts. For further information, entry forms and prize lists, write to: Leroy Emerson, Edmonton Northlands, Box 1480, Edmonton, Alta., T5J 2N5.

Patterns Available: No. BSB-80: Basic Calico Soft Box: Complete directions for making a simple rectangular box. $2.20. Book — Betty's Basic Boxes, by Betty Mason of Betty Mason's Creations, Ventura, California — 42 pages of photos, drawings, ideas and patterns of many different ways to make fabric boxes. $6.50.

How To Order: Send our name, address and postal code, along with a cheque or money order to: Hearthside Patterns, c/o Victoria Times, P.O. Box 9120, Station E, Edmonton, Alta., T5P 4J2.

'Pompous' writer replies

By LES HOLBROOK

"It makes me see red when you pompous columnists and rich men tell other people how to adapt to living poor (your column in The Province," writes Mrs. R. G., Vancouver.

She apparently considers this old writer a "pompous columnist". Her example of a "rich man" (who gave me his comments on adapting to our senior years) is Dr. Bob McClure, the famous medical missionary who probably lived on less money than todays' poorest of pensioners during his long years of service in China and elsewhere.

It is obvious that Mrs G. is unfamiliar with the career of Dr. McClure. For $3.95, Mrs. G., buy the paperback McClure — The China Years — or borrow the hard-cover version from your public library — and read about the great man you criticize — a man who put other people far above any personal gain — and still does at 80!

Also learn that your pompous columnist, as he notes in his book Making The Most of Your Senior Years, is some years older than your own 66 years and, like you, has to watch his spending.

Having cleared up those two points (after which I am sure that Mrs G. will withdraw her comment "tell your Dr. McClure to drop dead") I want to sympathize with Mrs. G. and her husband for the bad luck that finds them with so little in the way of wordly goods after planning and working carefully for comfortable senior years.

"After bringing up five younger sister and later raising three children, at sixty my husband thought the future looked bright. We had a nice home, a modest bank account and we both had jobs. But three years of illness wiped that out and we had to give up our car, our enjoyment of the arts, entertaning our friends and so on. I re-cycle my clothes which fortunately were of good quality to start with."

Actually my western reader and Dr. McClure are not far apart in their views on financing the senior years. The doctor said "With necessary adaptation, one should live on one's pension and other retirement income with government payments going only to unfortunats who are in genuine need."

Mrs. G. says "With the economy in the state it is in, why is the government not doing something about the wealthy people who collect the Old Age Pension? Imagine the extra money that could be put into OAS funds to pay a decent pension to really needy people.

"No one wants to deprive anyone of something they are entitled to but surely old people living below the poverty line deserve a little more.

"Instead of telling people how to reduce their standard of living and how to manage finances when they have nothing left to manage, why don't you write about hints on makings clothes do by remodelling, recipes for reasonable, nutritious meals, etc.?"

Well, recipes and such is not my usual cup of tea but let's hear from readers who have such tips for fellow seniors. I'll try to work them in.

Send comments and questions (long, stamped, addressed envelope for reply) to Victoria Times. c/o Box 1506, Guelph, Ont. N1H 6N9.

Crash probe deepens

TORONTO (CP) — Three federal air-crash investigators were suspended from normal duties last July after they were suspected of deliberately destroying documents relating to a 43-death airplane crash in Cranbrook B.C., a federal inquiry into air safety has been told.

The RCMP investigated the allegations and officers of the force are expected to testify at the inquiry that the documents were shredded to avoid being subpoenaed.

RCMP documents obtained by The Globe and Mail show that the force began its investigation last July after John Sims, a justice department lawyer, told the Mounties he believed key documents relating to the 1978 Cranbrook crash had been deliberately shredded.

The report said the missing documents and photographs were needed because "at stake was a possible $15-million law suit which the federal government was in danger of losing as the result of the loss or destruction of these documents."

The RCMP raided offices in the air safety investigation branch of Transport Canada and seized files, photographs, tapes and other records.

Crown corp. sales up in air

OTTAWA (CP) — The fate of most of the Progressive Conservative government's plans to sell Crown corporations to the private sector apparently depends on the philosophy of the new Liberal treasury board president.

The Conservatives set several plans in motion to sell or tighten control over more than a dozen Crown corporations but the future of all of these programs — with the exception of the widely-publicized scheme to reduce the role of Petro-Canada, the state-owned oil company — is unclear.

The Liberals vowed during the Feb. 18 election campaign they would strengthen and expand Petro-Canada. Ottawa Centre MP John Evans, the party's renewable energy and conservation critic in the last Parliament, said Friday legislation will be introduced early in the new session to set up a Petro-Canada subsidiary called the Alternate Energy Corporation of Canada.

But it's "anybody's guess" what will happen to the other proposals, Jean-Luc Pepin, Liberal party critic in the last Commons on the Tory's privatization plans, said Friday.

"Only the minister when he has taken control of his portfolio will know."

Outgoing Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens and the private sector advisers and civil servants who have been working on the plans since last autumn hope the new government will look seriously at the work done so far.

Derek Hannaford, a Montreal investment dealer who is the chairman of an advisory committee of private sector officials studying Stevens' proposals to sell four Crown corporations and their subsidiaries, adds: "What will happen now? I don't know."

Hannaford's committee and a group of public servants have been studying Canadair Ltd. of Montreal, de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. of Toronto, Eldorado Nuclear Ltd. of Ottawa and Northern Transportation Co. Ltd. of Edmonton and four of their subsidiaries to determine what is the best method to turn them over to the private sector.

Hannaford said no thought was given to halting his committee's work after the Conservative government was defeated because it was being done on a contract basis.

Most of the work is done and is expected to be presented to the new government later this month.

Stevens said the new government will have all the information it needs to act on the matter — if it wants to do so.

Pepin, who told the Commons in November the program would result "in a mess which will harm the Canadian economy, the viability of the corporations themselves and the stability of employment", refused to speculate about what will happen now.

"I'd be shooting off the hip if I did," he said.

Stevens also said the fate of other Tory initiatives such as reducing the size of the public service and tightening cabinet and parliamentary control over government spending will depend on the new treasury board president.

"I'd put some tight-fisted people" in the key financial portfolios, said Stevens, who earned the nickname The Slasher for his efforts during the nine-month Conservative tenure.

Also awaiting the new ministers' attention is a bill the Tories put forward to attempt to tighten control over Crown corporations such as Air Canada, Canadian National Railways, Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., the Export Development Corp., the National Harbors Board, Canada Mortgage and Housing Corp., Polymar Corp. Ltd., the St. Lawrence Seaway Corp. and the Royal Canadian Mint.

Defeated MPs' assistants now scrambling on bread line

OTTAWA (CP) — Hundreds of secretaries, researchers and executive assistants are scrambling for jobs these days following the defeat of the Progressive Conservative government and many of their bosses on Feb. 18.

And many admit they will be looking for jobs outside the realm of partisan politics because they say chances are slim of an executive assistant to a Conservative minister getting a similar job with a Liberal.

Party spokesmen agreed the same holds true, to a degree, for researchers, but secretaries of defeated MPs are not necessarily tainted with the same brush.

In most cases, a secretary's loyalty is to the individual MP rather than the party, they said.

New Democratic Party spokesman Nelson Coyle said the party has already received several applications for jobs from special assistants and executive assistants who were working for Conservative ministers before the election.

The party does not automatically ignore such applications because skills and expertise cannot be overlooked, but they are "always viewed as partisan," he said.

Coyle said the party's first priority is ensuring jobs for the 15 or so persons who face unemployment as a result of five New Democrats losing their seats.

But he is optimistic that jobs will be found for those who want them because the NDP elected a total of 32 MPs, up five from the 27 it elected on May 22.

Peter Meerburg, who quit his job as a newspaper reporter in Halifax to take a job in July as executive assistant to Fisheries Minister James McGrath, is among the jobless and says he does not even plan to apply to the Liberals for a comparable job.

"I don't think they'd even touch me," said Meerburg, who sold his Halifax home and moved his family to Ottawa to take the job.

Liberal spokesman Michel Lepine said the party has about 100 resumes from secretaries and researchers looking for work, some from people who worked for the Conservatives.

Pravda raps 'saucer' fans

MOSCOW (AP) — The official Soviet press has renewed its attacks on Soviet flying-saucer enthusiasts, insisting that no scientific evidence has confirmed purported sightings of interplanetary visitors or their spacecraft.

Court cancels prof's penalty

OTTAWA (CP) — The board of governors of the University of British Columbia were told by the Supreme Court of Canada today to cancel an order suspending professor Julius Kane for three months.

Also wiped out was another part of the board's decision that told the professor to make financial restitution for alleged improper use of university computer facilities.

Another allegation against Kane was that he improperly used his National Research Council grant to support private work and to purchase hardware items not related to the purpose of the grant.

The dean of the university's faculty of graduate studies and the dean of the faculty of science recommended in February, 1977, that Kane be dismissed.

Following a meeting called by university president Dr. Douglas Kenny, the deans decided instead to recommend a three-month suspension without pay. Kenny then acted on their instructions.

The deans changed their minds after it was argued that Kane followed irregular procedures through a misunderstanding rather than an attempt to deceive.

After the president suspended Kane, the professor appealed to the board of governors, saying he should not be suspended for his actions.

In its ruling today, the Supreme Court said in a 6-to-1 decision that Kane was denied natural justice since new facts were heard by the board without him having a chance to challenge them.

Banff filming

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Bronson, Lee Marvin and Joan Collins are to star in Arctic Rampage, to be shot on location near Banff, Alta. The adventure drama is based on the true story of Alberta Johnson, who was chased by trappers, Indians and the RCMP for 48 days in 1932.

McCarthy refutes doctor's statement on Langwood

Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy has taken issue with statements made by the chairman of the Capital Regional Association for the Mentally Handicapped.

Dr. George Stocker was critical of McCarthy and her ministry after a meeting Thursday to discuss the scheduled closure March 31 of the Langwood Workshop for the mentally handicapped.

McCarthy called Stocker's remarks "confrontational tactics" after he said he doubted the ministry was prepared to assist the association with money to keep the workshop open.

The minister said the association's budget proposal is still being studied "sympathetically".

"As far as my ministry is concerned, talks are continuing. I still hope for a settlement that will meet the needs of the retarded at Langwood," she said.

"Dr. Stocker insisted on an immediate agreement by the ministry, something I could not do because of province-wide budget implications. He then took it upon himself to announce that the Langwood centre would close March 31."

McCarthy said she is optimistic about finding the extra $23,000 in funding needed to keep the centre open, although she made no promises.

She also said if the workshop closes it will be by decision of the association, not her ministry.

Stocker said his impression of the meeting with McCarthy was that she was not prepared to provide the needed funds for continued operation of the workshop.

He suggested her meeting with himself and the executive director of the association was to meet "political obligations".

The association has been picking up the workshop's annual deficit with assistance from the provincial govenment.

Police endorse bow hunting

Saanich police department has recommended to council that bow and arrow hunting be permitted on the peninsula for another year.

Permits allowing the hunting expired Thursday.

In a report to council's bylaw enforcement committee, police said only 62 permits were taken out last year and no complaints were recieved either by the police department or the provincial fish and wildlife branch.

"In view of the low profile this program has attained we would suggest it be continued," the report said.

A bow hunting program running from August to February was set up on the peninsula in 1974 as a means of reducing the deer population.

Man presumed dead as engines hit lake

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Railway's main line was cleared late Saturday night following a derailment Friday in which two locomotives left the tracks and plunged into Seton Lake near Lillooet.

Keith Biddlecomb, 33, of Port Coquitlam, a brakeman on the Crown-owned railway, was missing and presumed drowned after he and engineman Donald Balkwill, 43, of Prince George, rode the lead locomotive into the lake, about 180 kilometres north of Vancouver.

Balkwill swam free of the locomotive and was rescued by the crew man on a speeder car which had preceded the 59-car freight along the tracks by a few minutes. He is in satisfactory condition in Lillooet hospital.

BCR spokesman Hugh Armstrong said divers would resume the search today for Biddlecomb's body. He said the engines were in about 40 metres of water and divers were hampered by poor visibility in the murky, cold water on Saturday.

The derailment occurred when the southbound train rounded a bend and struck a large rock which had fallen onto the tracks. Armstrong said the rock fell just after the speeder checked the line for slides and the train, carrying copper ore, lumber and grain, could not stop in time.

Hydro dispute aired

Representatives of B.C. Hydro and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers met today in an effort to iron out a contracting-out dispute which resulted in a two-day wildcat strike last week.

An IBEW, Local 258 membership meeting is to be held tonight.

SOOKE WATERFRONT
The home is 30 yrs. old in very good condition, with much charm. The sea views from the living room and master BR are superb. The setting is private, with a tree-lined driveway leading into a 1.58 acre tract that combines mature landscaping with towering native fir. The 157' beach is accessible for strolling and summer fun, yet quite secluded. Several good outbuildings, fruit trees, holly and a fine garden plot compliment the pastoral setting of this lovely cottage style home. A new listing at $120,000 with

309 IN MEMORIAM

FANSTONE — In loving memory of Lawrence Fanstone, who passed away March 2, 1966; — Remembered always by his wife, Lillian, and daughter, Rose.

HOLLAND — In loving memory of a great father, father-in-law and grandfather Charles E. Holland who passed away March 2, 1977.

Do not stand at my grave and weep
I am not there, I do not sleep
I am a thousand winds that blow
I am the diamond glints on snow
I am the sunlight on ripened grain
I am the gentle autumn's rain
When you awaken in the morning's hush
I am the swift uplifting rush
Of quiet birds in circled flight
I am the soft stars that shine at night
I am not there. I did not die.

—Ever remembered by son Harold, Daughter-in-law, Mary, grand children, Deborah, Susan and Richard in Calgary.

HOLLAND - In memory of C.E. Holland, passed away March 2, 1977.

He lives, and grants me daily breath; He lives,
and I shall conquer death;
He lives, my mansion to prepare; He lives, to bring me safely there.

Forever remembered and loved Tom and Arlene.

Holland: In loving memorys of my darling husband Charles E. Holland passed away March 2, 1977.

And helps us to forget.
But time so far has only proven,
How much we miss him, yet
Your presence we miss.
Your memory we treasure.
Loving you always and forgetting you never.
Always loved and missed by his wife Helen. Praise the Lord.

Pursuant to Section 766AA of the Municipal Act, the following text of By-law No. 661, cited as "Zoning By-law (Sooke), Planning Area No. 1, Amendment By-law No. 36, 1979" is hereby published as at third reading and prior to submission to the Ministry of Municipal Affairs.

A BY-LAW TO AMEND BY-LAW NO. 282, BEING "ZONING BY-LAW (SOOKE) 1976"

WHEREAS the Regional Board may, pursuant to Section 702AA of the Municipal Act, in a Zoning By-law or in an amendment to an existing Zoning By-law, provide for the issue of development permits;

AND WHEREAS the Regional Board has in its consideration of this by-law had due regard to the considerations referred to in Sections 702(2) and 702AA(1) of the Municipal Act;

AND WHEREAS the Regional Board is of the opinion that special conditions prevail with respect to the physical environment and with respect to design and siting considerations within those areas in the Regional District described in Schedule "A" hereto;

AND WHEREAS the Regional Board desires to amend the said By-law No. 282 to designate development permit areas within the Electoral Area of Sooke to which the said By-law No. 282 applies and to authorize the issuance of development permits therein;

NOW THEREFORE the Board of the Capital Regional District in open meeting assembled, enacts as follows:

1. By-law No. 282, cited as "Zoning By-law (Sooke) 1976" is amended as follows:
   By adding after Schedule 7 the following new Schedule:

SCHEDULE 7A — DEVELOPMENT PERMIT AREAS

7A.01 ISSUANCE
Prior to the commencement of a development other than the development of three or less self-contained dwelling units, an owner of land within a development permit area shall obtain or hold a development permit. A development permit may (a) vary or supplement the zoning regulations or subdivision regulations applicable thereto but only in relation to any of the matters referred to in subsection 2(a) to (k) of Section 702AA of the Municipal Act; (b) vary the provisions of Section 713 of the Municipal Act as they apply to the land to the extent set out in the development permit, but the permitted uses or density of land use prescribed by the applicable by-law may not be varied.

7A.02 REGISTRATION IN LAND TITLES OFFICE
Before a development permit in a development permit area is issued to the applicant, the Secretary of the Capital Regional District shall ensure that he obtains from the applicant an executed condition or covenant in favour of the Capital Regional District containing such of the regulations or requirements of the development permit as are registerable in the Land Titles Office pursuant to Section 215 of the Land Titles Act and shall cause the same to be registered in the Land Titles Office.

7A.03 DEVELOPMENT IN ACCORDANCE WITH PERMIT
If a development permit is issued, the land shall be developed strictly in accordance with the terms, conditions and provisions of the permit.

7A.04 DEVELOPMENT PERMIT AREAS
Those areas described in Schedule "A" of this by-law are hereby designated Development Permit Areas.

A copy of the complete by-law may be viewed during normal working hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday inclusive, holidays excepted, at the offices of the Capital Regional District, 524 Yates Street, Victoria, B.C.

Handweeding the bulbs has moments of delight

gardening

Handweeding of bulbs in the homegarden at this time is not a job to be scorned. Nor should it be boring.

Depending on how much bending you have done since the last weeding spree, it should be pleasant enough, if for no other reason than the amount of activity to be observed while down on the knees at ground level.

Don't forget to take the moisture-proof kneeling mat, a pair of thin gloves if you must have this protection still, a narrow-bladed transplanting trowel, a small handfork and a broad-topped container for the weeds.

A story went the rounds of local nurseries many years ago of the wife of one nurseryman feeling frustrated because every weed she pulled out and threw aside was found to be growing lustily a week later. This was not what she had been accustomed to in a cold eastern climate that was followed by hot sunshine. There, the weeds shrivelled in a half hour.

Most weeds at this season are annuals. Those you recognize as perennials need digging out a bit more carefully so as not to leave a piece of the root or crown in the bed to shoot up again later.

Among the bulbs, most have made their appearance by this time. As you work, there is pleasure in noting the plants which have buds visible. A label may identify the kind of plant, or genus, such as narcissus, tulip, or crocus, but if the species and variety are not named on the label, it is fun to imagine how the flowers will look.

A few of the many blue flowered small bulbs will be making their appearance according to what you have planted in the past.

Some seed freely, forming colonies around early flowering shrubs. They need hand weeding; and another weeding in three or four weeks time.

Crocus flowers may belong to the species tomasinianus if they are purple or mauve shades. They range between rich ruby to silvery lilac.

Prolific seeders, they propagate freely giving many lovely colors in the informal self-sown group.

Crocus chrysanthus is another species which gives a wide range of the oranges, yellows, a creamy white and the pure white Snow Bunting. There is also the smaller group of chrysanthus having soft blues such as Blue Peter and Blue Bird.

All the crocuses mentioned are the relatively small flowered early species for this season, not to be confused with the large Dutch hybrids coming later.

Working on the knees is likely to bring the pleasure of noting a rather lazy bee or two if the sun is out to raise the current temperature over the 10 deg. mark.

Opening of the blooms is an automatic floral device of crocuses and a few other plants that depend totally on bees for pollination. When a cloud passes over the sun, the temperature at this early season drops immediately and the bees cease their flower visits. As a means of preserving the pollen and nectar from rain, snow, or a cold night temperature, the blossoms close almost at the speed of the cloud movement. The petals are closely overlapped and upright, preventing entrance of moisture and chill, both affecting the quality of pollen.

Observing this phenomenon and mentally recording it forever, is repayment for whatever backache may result from the weeding job.

I suppose a certain type of home movie camera would be capable of recording the opening and closing, as has been done by scientists many years ago recording the opening and closing of cactus blooms, another case of response to daylight.

Unclaimed gas tax to aid kidney patients

TORONTO (CP) — Gulf Canada Ltd. plans to use money gathered under the defeated Progressive Conservative government's proposed four-cent-a-litre excise tax to purchase kidney treatment machines to be located in remote areas across the country.

A Gulf spokesman said today the company will buy 10 or 11 kidney treatment machines with the $120,000 not claimed by gasoline customers after the Conservative government's excise tax increase was defeated in December.

The company says although it has not been determined where the dialysis units will be located, it expects they will go to more remote communities where people now have to travel long distances to hospitals.

The gasoline tax of four cents a litre or 18 cents a gallon was proposed by the former Conservative government on December 12. The government was defeated two days later in the House of Commons and the collected taxes were offered back to customers if they responded by the end of February.

Dialysis treatment for six to eight hours each week allows people with kidney problems to live a relatively normal life until they are able to obtain kidney transplants.

DUNCAN — A proposal to move the Mill Bay ferry terminal to Hatch Point on the west side of Saanich Inlet appears to be gaining support.

North Cowichan Mayor Graham Bruce has suggested in a letter to Transport Minister Alex Fraser that the ferry service across the inlet should run between Hatch Point and the Swartz Bay ferry terminal. The service now runs between Mill Bay and Brentwood.

Bruce's argument, supported by Duncan council at a recent meeting, is that relocating the ferry terminals would make it more convenient for travellers from Tsawwassen and the Gulf Islands to connect with points north on Vancouver Island.

Duncan Ald. Martin Lukaitis, who also serves as chairman of the Cowichan Valley Regional Board, sees the move as a benefit to business in the valley.

"As it stands at the moment, you might as well drive all the way to Victoria and forget about the ferry," Lukaitis said.

Iran's council to permit meeting

Times News Services

A spokesman for the UN Commission on Iran said today the Iranian Revolutionary Council has decided unanimously to allow the panel to visit the 50 American hostages held in the U.S. Embassy and "it could be soon."

But a spokesman for the militants who seized the embassy 121 days ago said they have not yet decided whether to it.

UN spokesman Smir Sanbar, reached by telephone from London, said Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh informed the commission of the council's decision at a one-hour meeting today.

Asked when the commission could visit the embassy, Sanbar said no date was set but the commission would remain in close contact with the government.

"It could be soon," he said. "There was a one-hour exchange of views with the foreign minister. The foreign minister informed us that the Revolutionary Council decided unanimously that it may see the hostages. The commission will remain in close contact with the council."

Informed of Sanbar's statement, a spokesman for the militants holding the hostages said, "We have not decided yet if the visit can take place."

He said he did not know when a decision would be reached.

President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr had previously indicated the captives will not be freed soon and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini did not even mention them in his latest public speech.

The commission has been working on a package deal that would link the captives' release to an investigation of the ousted shah's alleged crimes.

In another development, Tehran Radio reported that the revolutionary prosecutor general asked that one of the three American diplomats being held in the Foreign Ministry be turned over to his office in connection with the ongoing trial of a terrorist group.

In a note to Ghotbzadeh, the prosecutor — his name was not disclosed — said since the militants in the U.S. Embassy have presented evidence of links "between the U.S. espionage den (U.S. Embassy) and the Forqan terrorist group, please issue instructions for Mr. Tomseth, a hostage held by the Moslem Iranian nation, to be handed over to the office of the Islamic revolution's public prosecutor."

Victor Tomseth, 38, of Springfield, Ore., the senior embassy political officer, has been at the Iranian Foreign Ministry with Charge d'Affaires Bruce Laingen and security chief Mike Holland since Nov. 4. They were at the ministry when the embassy was invaded.

And in the U.S., the magazine Politics Today reports that Despite warnings it would undermine the shah, President Carter abruptly ended CIA payments to Iranian religious figures in 1977.

The State Department would not comment on the article's assertions.

The payments, Drooz said, began after the shah was ousted in 1953. The CIA aided in restoring the shah to power and, in essense, began buying support for him with payments to Iran's ayatollahs and mullahs.

El Salvador toll mounts

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Nine people died in a bloody Sunday of political violence and the archbishop of San Salvador chided citizens for permitting government "repression" to run rampant.

Spokesmen for the Social Security Hospital in San Salvador said the bodies of two unidentified men were found Sunday in the town of Nejapa, 11 miles north of the capital.

The victims, apparently killed earlier in the day and estimated to be about 35 and 45 years old, were found covered with tree branches on the outskirts of the town, they said. Both were shot numerous times in the head.

FBI unveils an 'illegal spy'

WASHINGTON (AP) — At an unusual news conference, the FBI today presented a top-ranking Soviet spy who became a double agent during the course of his 11-year assignment to secretly report on political trends in the United States.

The agent, a colonel in the Soviet KGB who said he had operated under the name of Rudolph Albert Herrmann, answered questions while appearing in profile behind an opaque glass screen with his voice disguised electronically.

Herrmann operated as a free-lance photographer living in Hartsdale, N.Y., outside New York City, and said that his primary mission was to gather political information, not military data.

Homer Boynton, executive assistant director of the FBI, said the FBI believed that Herrmann, whose real name was not disclosed, had not supplied the Soviet Union with any classified information.

Boynton turned aside questions as to whether the FBI was unveiling this man as part of a get-tough policy with the Soviet Union by saying the FBI thought it was important that the American people be aware of how such "illegal spies" operated.

Herrmann's major functions were selecting and servicing "drop sites" for other agents whom he never met. Drop sites are locations at which spies leave money, information, instructions or equipment for other spies to pick up.

FBI officials would not say when they turned Herrmann into a double agent other than "a number of years ago." They said his work as a double agent was terminated several months ago out of fear that the KGB suspected he might be co-operating with U.S. intelligence.

The FBI said that Herrmann's wife and teen-aged son were being relocated in the United States along with him and that his physical appearance had been altered.

Herrmann said he received his communications by radio from the Soviet Union weekly in code. He said he communicated with his superiors by secret writing in letters to addresses in Europe and in occasional trips to Moscow, the latest in 1977.

The FBI said a factor in the decision to close the operation was the KGB's insistence that his son return to Moscow for advanced training with no guarantee of returning to the United States.

Colombia, guerrillas negotiate

BOGOTA (WP) — Representatives of the Colombian government met for the first time Sunday, with leftist guerrillas holding more than 40 hostages, and the guerrillas then freed five more captives.

The initial negotiating session, lasting 90 minutes, was held in a police van parked outside the Dominican Embassy that the guerrillas seized during a reception last Wednesday.

While the hostages include 14 ambassadors and numerous other diplomats, those released included four waiters and a doctor. With the women and wounded released earlier, 23 have been freed.

Representing the government were Camilo Jimenez Villalba and Ramiro Zambrano, both high-ranking officials in the Foreign Ministry. They met with one of the guerrillas, her head covered by a white hood to prevent identification, and Mexican Ambassador Ricardo Galan, one of the envoys among the hostages.

ASCENCIO

. . . ambassador wounded

U.S. Ambassador Diego Ascencio was shot Wednesday during the original raid by the rebels and later taken to a hospital.

About an hour before the negotiations began, police killed at least one occupant of a car that entered the zone surrounding the embassy, reportedly having ignored warnings to halt.

Thailand gets new leader

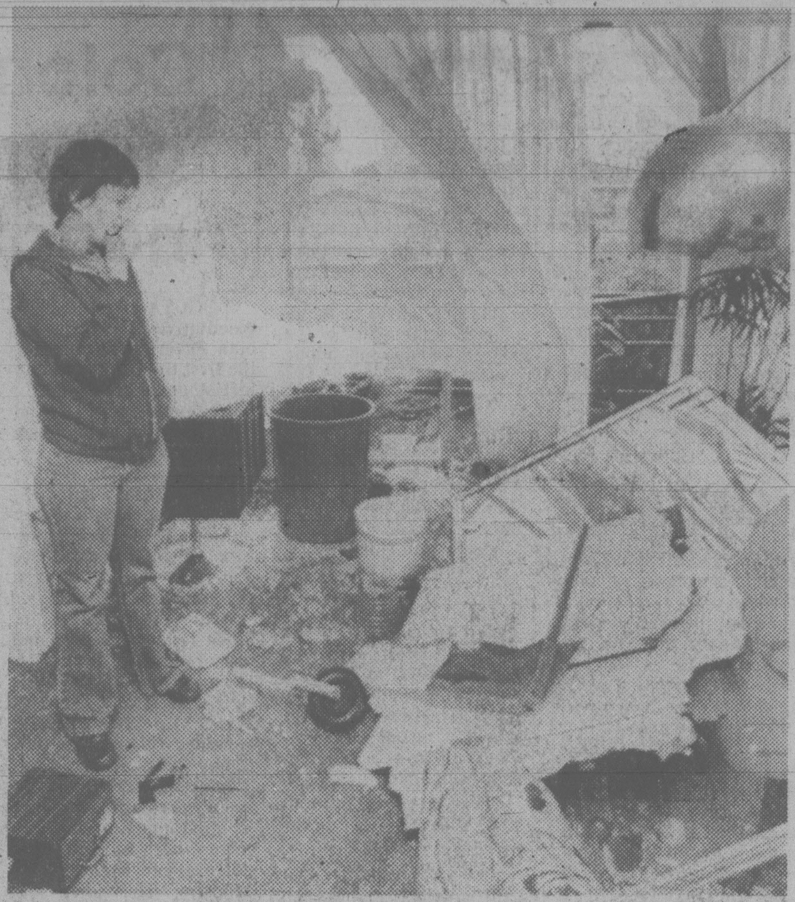
BANGKOK (AP) — The Thai parliament today elected Gen. Prem Tinsulanond, a 59-year-old career military officer who entered politics three years ago, to be the new prime minister.

Prem defeated former prime minister Kukrit Pramoj by a 399-to-79 vote. The prime minister-elect now must receive formal approval from King Bhumipol Adulyadej.

Major political leaders and military groups manoeuvred over the weekend to line up support for Prem as the successor to Kriangsak Chomanan, who resigned Friday.

Prem, Thailand's army commander and defence minister, is regarded as a popular figure among young officers. But his inexperience in politics has raised doubts about his ability to handle Thailand's economic problems and its delicate foreign policy dealing with the war in neighboring Cambodia.

Prem, who did not attend the secret voting, later told reporters: "I feel very worried about accepting the post. It is a very difficult position to be in."



CONDOMINIUM RIPPED up in a Florida tornado left this mess for Dara Pulaski of Oakland Park, Fla. It was only one incident in widespread weekend storms across the United States, including snow storms that hit Virginia, North Carolina and Florida and more rain in California that brought a recurrence of mudslides. In Florida, strong winds swept one woman from her sixth floor balcony to her death, one of 27 storm related deaths on the weekend.

Dutch police, rioters clash

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — Police backed by tanks and water cannons clashed today with rioting squatters and hundreds of their youthful supporters.

At least six officers were reported injured and police said gangs of up to 300 people were roaming through the city.

The rioting was the worst in a decade in Amsterdam, which has had a squatter problem for years because of a housing shortage.

Six Centurion tanks supported by troop carriers and mobile police units rolled into the Vondel Park area of Amsterdam at about 5.30 a.m. (8:30 p.m. PST Sunday) to clear away barricades erected by the squatters.

The police action was in response to fighting Friday that left 25 policemen injured, some of them seriously.

Municipal officials said the squatters, who have taken over an empty building intended for old people, had rejected two compromise offers over the weekend.

Thousands of tourists and residents watched Saturday and Sunday as the squatters, helped by passers-by, ripped up streets to build barricades up to 11-feet high and 13-feet deep.

The fighting began today after helicopters dropped pamphlets warning that the barricades had to be removed.

Amsterdam Mayor Willem Polak appealed to people to stay indoors and promised that the squatters would not be bothered if they allowed the barricades to be removed.

But authorities said police were stoned, assaulted and kicked as they began to dismantle the barricades.

The six tanks, which were equipped with road scrapers, began to open roads and push back the piles of rubble, wrecked cars and building material.

Police, however, reported heavy fighting at one of the barricades and said they were being replaced as fast as police could clear them.

Police reported that helicopters spotted gangs of up to 300 people roaming through the city.

Israel censured by UN

United Press International

Israeli officials, upset by American support for a U.N. Security Council resolution condemning their nation's settlement policy, Sunday upheld the right of Jews to live in Arab territories Israel has occupied since 1967.

The U.N. Security Council resolution, which passed unanimously Saturday, called on Israel to stop moving Jewish settlers into the occupied West Bank, Gaza Strip and east Jerusalem, all captured in the 1967 war, and to dismantle the more than 100 existing outposts already built.

In Cairo, Egypt officially welcomed the Council resolution and the U.S. vote as twin declarations of support for its own position on the Palestinian problem.

But Palestinian leaders in the occupied West Bank said the decision to censure Israel without calling for action against the Jewish state did not go far enough to help them.

Severe weather forced postponement of the scheduled Israeli cabinet meeting until Tuesday when ministers will take up the issue of Jewish settlement in Hebron, a West Bank city of 70,000 Arabs.

The Israeli move to build Jewish settlements in Hebron provoked the Council debate and the Israeli defeat. All 15 Council members, including the United States, voted against Israel.

Scientist gets religion prize

LONDON (Reuter) — Ralph Wendell Burhoe, a Chicago scientist and theologian, today was awarded an international prize worth $198,000 for his work in reconciling science and religion.

The Templeton Foundation, in announcing the award for progress in religion, said that Burhoe, a Baptist, has elaborated a revolutionary hypothesis that religion was central to the evolutionary emergence of civilized humanity.

Four from West in cabinet

Grit team mixes old and new

OTTAWA (CP) — Allan MacEachen, 58, was sworn in Monday as finance minister in the new Liberal cabinet, taking on the difficult chore of dealing with the country's chronic inflation, unemployment and other economic woes.

The long-serving Cape Breton Liberal headed a list of 33 ministers unveiled as Pierre Trudeau was sworn in again as prime minister by Gov.-Gen. Ed Schreyer in a pomp-filled ceremony at Government House.

Key ministers in the list included Mark MacGuigan, 49, of Windsor, as minister of external affairs, fellow Windsor MP Herb Gray as minister of industry, trade and commerce and Marc Lalonde, 50, as minister of energy.

Jean-Luc Pepin, 55, was named minister of transport and Maurice Lamontagne, 60, of Quebec City, was appointed minister of defence.

Trudeau rounded out the economic portfolios in the cabinet with a list of newcomers including Donald Johnston, 43, of Montreal, into the purse-strings-controlling job as president of the treasury board and Ed Lumley, 40, a small businessman and former mayor of Cornwall, as minister responsible for trade.

Charles Lapointe, 35, from the Quebec City riding of Charlevoix, was named to the cabinet for the first time as minister of small business and Judy Erola, a broadcaster from the nickel-mining city of Sudbury, was named minister responsible for mines.

Senator Bud Olson of Alberta, once a Liberal minister of Agriculture, was named as the cabinet representative for that province as minister of economic development.

Pierre Bussières, from the Quebec City-area riding of Charlesbourg, will be minister of state for finance — in fact an assistant to MacEachen — and Pierre De Bane will be minister of regional economic expansion.

After 7 years of captivity, kidnapped boy returns

By LARRY STAMMER
Los Angeles Times

UKIAH, Calif. — Two boys kidnapped seven years and 200 miles apart were found together in this Northern California town and reunited on Sunday with their joyful parents.

Police arrested Kenneth Eugene Parnell, 48, a night clerk at a hotel here, for investigation of kidnapping in the abduction of Steven Stayner, 14, and Timmy Lee White, 5.

Both kidnapping victims were in good physical shape.

Stayner, described now as a "healthy, intelligent, strapping young man," was 7 years old when he disappeared Dec. 7, 1972, while walking home from school in Merced, 200 miles south of here in the San Joaquin Valley.

Timmy, a blond, freckled-faced kindergarten pupil, vanished on Valentine's Day last month as he walked from Ukiah's Yokayo Elementary School to his babysitter three blocks away.

Until police found them on a downtown street shortly before midnight Saturday, the two boys had been living with Parnell in a cabin near the coastal hamlet of Manchester, about 45 miles southwest of here, authorities said.

Earlier Saturday, they had walked and hitchhiked to Ukiah in the rain because Stayner felt sorry for Timmy, who had been crying for his parents and sister.

At first, Stayner tried to take Timmy to his babysitter but found no one at home. Then, because the teen-ager wasn't sure Timmy knew where he lived, he took the boy to the police station and told him to go inside.

Timmy was crying when he peeked in the front door of the station but ran when he saw that an officer had seen him.

Minutes later, Officer Russell Van Voorhis stopped Stayner and his small charge for questioning because of the lateness of the hour and their age.

Since Valentine's Day, the best overtime efforts of Ukiah's 22-member police department had failed to find Timmy, so when the boy said he was "Timmy White" Van Voorhis immediately recognized the name.

"We've been looking all over for you," the officer said, sweeping Timmy up in his arms.

Questioned at the police station, Stayner said he also had been kidnapped, and he remembered his name and hometown.

"I brought in Timmy because I didn't like what was happening," Stayner told a press conference here Sunday. "It happened to me and I just didn't want to see it happen to somebody else."

Interest relief hinted

TORONTO (CP) — A number of Liberal MPs are saying a top priority of the new federal government will be to ease the mortgage squeeze threatening thousands of Canadian homeowners, according to the Star.

The newspaper says many of the 200,000 Canadian homeowners renewing mortgages this year will face payment problems because interest rates have climbed five per cent in the last five years.

The Star says Windsor, Ont., MP Herb Gray, a strong candidate for the Liberal cabinet, advises homeowners renewing their mortgages this month to take only a one-year mortgage and wait until Ottawa tackles the interest-rate problem.

He hinted that the Liberals are looking at several options to help beleaguered homeowners.

British heir lacks hair

LONDON (UPI) — The man who would be king may be going bald.

The Sun, London's largest circulation daily newspaper, said the 31-year-old heir to the British throne showed the increasing size of his bald spot as he bent over a microscope at the opening of a forensic science laboratory over the weekend.

The tabloid said he finally admitted jokingly that he is getting a bit thin on top.

Mugabe wins majority

Times News Services

SALISBURY — Marxist-leaning guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe has won an absolute majority in Rhodesia's independence elections, authoritative sources said today.

A group of journalists allowed inside one of the eight provincial election centers said Mugabe appeared to have taken about 29,000 of the first 40,000.

Sources among the Commonwealth observers said the trend elsewhere in the country also seemed to be running in his favor.

Election officials said it would take until midnight for all the votes to be counted and the actual results would be kept secret until a formal announcement Tuesday morning.

The counting of the votes from the three-day election came amid fears that new fighting could result if the voting failed to produce a clear winner, as predicted.

Mugabe, confident that his party has won the greatest share of the 100-seat parliament, said Sunday British governor Lord Soames must pick him to form a government and then help to carry out the task.

Mugabe's prediction of victory came just as two key groups of foreign election observers said the three-day election that ended Friday was free and fair and adequate for determining the wishes of the black majority.

The two groups were a team of observers dispatched by British Commonwealth countries and a group of British government appointees.

But former Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa — a Mugabe foe — called the election a fraud because of alleged intimidation of voters, and said he reserved the right to reject the outcome. He was supported in his charges by white minority leader Ian Smith's Rhodesian Front Party.

Afghan battles escalate

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Soviet and Afghan troops backed by tanks and MiG fighters have mounted full-scale attacks on Moslem rebel positions in Afghanistan, a guerrilla spokesman said today.

The Soviet action, which was confirmed by Pakistani government officials in Islamabad, could be a prelude to an expected spring offensive by the Russians and loyal Afghan troops.

The spokesman for the Islamic Alliance for the Liberation of Afghanistan, a union of six rebel groups, reported the heaviest fighting was in the eastern province of Kunar, on the border with Pakistan.

He said the Soviet forces were using up to 200 tanks and 65 aircraft in the Kunar fighting alone.

Marguerite the best: Elworthy

The head of the B.C. Steamship Corporation insisted today that the Princess Marguerite is the best ship for the Victoria-Seattle run this summer.

In an interview today with the Times, Arthur Elworthy said:

"I know she can operate. I don't know that she will operate. The minister keeps saying she's not going to, so I don't know. They don't tell me.

"They're not talking to us at all. The minister says it's dead, it's finished. They haven't told me. I just read the paper."

The provincial government has announced the Marguerite will be replaced when the run starts in mid-May by the ferry Queen of Prince Rupert.

And Transport Minister Alex Fraser again confirmed today that the government will not change its mind about the Marguerite.

He said the government has been told the vessel is not safe and that there is a potential fire hazard.

"I have told the directors that I am the spokesman for the steamship company and I say she won't run," Fraser repeated.

But Elworthy said the Marguerite is safe. She has Canadian Coast Guard and U.S. clearance and Lloyd's of London said she is seaworthy. With a refit she would be capable of sailing for several more years, he said.

Elworthy said the government was misled about the Rupert.

"They were told the Rupert could do 18 knots, which she cannot."

Her best speed is 15 knots, four knots slower than the Marguerite. At 16 knots the Rupert starts to shake terribly, he said.

"The Rupert is going to be completely useless on the Seattle run."

It will cost money to refit the Marguerite for the Seattle run, but it might be less than the bill for preparing the Queen of Prince Rupert.

The jetfoil mentioned as an auxiliary to the new ferry is a good idea, Elworthy said, but the fare may have to be prohibitively expensive.

"What nobody is saying about the jetfoil is what they're going to charge. I've heard it's going to be $60 on the jetfoil. I'm wondering how many people are going to pay $60 return."

Roe fishing starts with dispute

By MIKE HUGHES

The game of brinkmanship over the minimum guaranteed price fishing companies will pay for roe herring is under way with this year's season hanging in the balance.

On Sunday, members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union and the Native Brotherhood of B.C. voted 90 per cent not to fish for the prices being offered.

(Herring fishermen blame Ottawa, page 8)

The two unions represent an estimated 30 per cent of the roe herring fleet and have rejected an offer of $640 a ton for gillnet-caught herring and $325 a ton for seine-caught herring.

The unions want $1,400 a ton for gilnets and $850 a ton for the seines.

A spokesman for the Fisheries Association of B.C., which represents 14 fishing companies, said today there has not yet been any official strike notice served by the unions.

Meanwhile, the federal fisheries department has opened the season for gillnets in two locations on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

A fisheries spokesman said today about 70 boats are fishing in Esperanza Inlet out of about 120 boats in the area. The gillnets are averaging three to five tons a boat, he said.

There are about 60 gillnetters in the Winter Harbor area, which was opened this morning, and 25 are fishing, he said.

There were rumors, but no confirmed reports, that some of the vessels fishing are union boats. The rest are independents, working for co-operatives or companies which don't belong to the fisheries association.

There are 1,550 licensed roe herring fishermen, 250 seiners and 1,300 gillnetters.

Jerry Spitz, president of the fisheries association, said today if an agreement on roe price isn't reached this week "we might as well forget about it.

"The odds are there won't be a fishery."

Spitz said the main problem is that the unions don't believe the companies' statements on the status of the roe market in Japan.

"They feel it is just a big plot, that the companies are trying to pull the wool over their eyes."

Spitz said the companies can't offer any more for the herring because even at their final offer they would be taking a loss in order to build up a decimated Japanese market.

Last year, Japanese consumers balked at buying roe because of high prices and a fear that hydrogen peroxide used to bleach the roe causes cancer.

The union says gouging and price fixing by Japanese companies and not fishermen's demands are to blame for last year's unpalatable $45-a-pound price for the eggs.

Bill Procopation, business agent for the United Fishermen, said the union is setting up information picket lines to stop production of herring.

But he said the union will not attempt to close down plant operations handling other species of fish and does not want to put shoreworkers out of work.

The youth said he had planned for a week and a half to return Timmy to Ukiah but had been delayed because of bad weather.

Police arrested Parnell early Sunday morning at the hotel where he worked. The booking record listed Parnell as single and gave his birthplace as Amarillo, Texas.

Shortly before Parnell's arrest, an officer called James and Angie White and told a sleepy Mrs. White that there was a small boy at the station who said his name was Timmy and he was lost.

The White's reunion with Timmy came minutes later. They found the boy dazed and untalkative, at first, but after Mrs. White held him in her arms for 15 or 20 minutes, he brightened and asked if his sister, Nicole, 6, had lost a tooth.

Then, he wanted to know how his cat was, and after that, according to his stepfather, Timmy was soon chatting with Nicole.

"They had changed his name," White related. "They cut his hair and dyed it. He said wild pigs had lived around where he had stayed and they had an outdoor shower.

"He said the man had bought him toy soldiers and crayons and a toy canoe. Once the man spanked him, but he wasn't mean."

White said Timmy had been crying to go home.

"There's nothing wrong with him," White said. "He's physically fine. We went to a hospital and checked him out. No type of sexual molestation. The man just wanted boys.

"We feel very lucky. That's for sure."

It was about 3 a.m. Sunday when Merced police woke up Delbert and Kay Stayner, ending years of hoping against hope that their missing son, Steven, was alive.

"Is he alive?" they asked the officer.

"He sure is," the policeman said.

"With that," Stayner said, "both of us started crying. I think the police officer thought we were going to hug him to death."

The 46-year-old Stayner, a maintenance mechanic for a canning company, and his wife have five children. Their son Steven is the third born.

"My wife never gave up hope," the elder Stayner said Sunday. "I weakened about two years ago, but I still had a little hope. The earth just swallowed him up."

Mrs. Stayner told an interviewer, "I felt when he was old enough that he would find his way home. We never really gave up hope on Steve.

Young Stayner recalled in Sunday's press conference that he was walking home from school when a man asked him if he wanted to donate anything to a church.

"I said my mother might," Stayner recalled, and he accepted the offer of a ride and got in the man's car to go home.

Instead of stopping, Stayner said, the man drove past his house and kept going. Later, according to Merced Police Chief Harold Kulbeth, the man told Steven that a court had awarded him custody of the boy.

After his abduction, according to Mendocino County District Attorney Joe Allen, Stayner tried to get in touch with his parents by telephone but apparently he was not sophisticated enough to reach the information operator.

Eventually, Allen said, a "close relationship" developed between Steven and his kidnapper. The district attorney said, "Apparently the man was kind to him and treated him decently. At some point, he decided to stick with what he had."

But, Allen said, when Timmy was brought to the Manchester cabin Steven became concerned about the small boy.

"...He realized it was not good for Timmy to be there."

As for the motive of the man accused of the two abductions, Allen said, "It seems he wanted to build a family for himself without going to the trouble of getting married."

Saanich police busy

Saanich police were kept busy Sunday with two disputes involving weapons.

In the first weapon incident, police were called to a family dispute in an apartment at 3255 Cook Street when a woman told them her husband had a rifle.

Police quickly cordoned off the area but were unable to contact the man because there was no phone in the apartment.

The Emergency Response Team — a group of five officers trained in specialized weapons and tactics specifically for unusual situations — was called out.

After almost four hours the man let police in.

No ammunition was found and no charges will be laid.

The second weapon incident sent officers to the Ten Mile Point area after a report a 17-year-old youth was holed up in his house after threatening his parents with what was believed to be a rifle.

He was arrested and a pellet rifle was seized.

The youth later appeared before a justice of the peace and was remanded in custody for psychiatric evaluation.

He is to appear in court on Wednesday on charges of pointing a firearm, possession of an offensive weapon and unlawfully being near a dwelling house at night.

today's markets

Toronto

The Toronto stock market was sharply higher in active mid-afternoon trading today.

Trading in Czar Resources Ltd., which was halted Friday, resumed and by 2 p.m. the stock was up 1⅛ to $21⅛.

Czar said a wholly-owned subsidiary, Czar Resources Inc., has drilled two oil discoveries in Texas.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said trading was halted at the opening in shares of OPI Ltd. The company's class A stock last traded at $46.

OPI has proposed to consolidate its class A and class B common shares into a single class of common shares on a two-for-one basis.

Trading in shares of Hugh Russel Inc., which was also halted at the opening, resumed and by 2 p.m. the company's class A stock jumped 3⅛ to $16¾.

First Commerce Financial Corp. said it is making an offer of $18 a share for all of Hugh Russel's outstanding A and B common shares.

Vancouver

Prices were up in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume at 10:54 a.m. PST was 7,396,246 shares.

Of stocks traded, 292 advanced, 128 declined and 127 were unchanged.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials, gaining .20 to $8.70 on 55,670 shares. Grouse Mountain dropped .04 to .70 on 8,000, Proflex remained steady at .35 on 8,000 and Ardiem Industrial remained unchanged at .25 on 7,500. Taro Industries dropped ¼ to $5¾ and Renn Industries remained unchanged at $2.

On the resource and development board, Kamad Silver gained .60 to $3.25 on 616,600 shares and San Jacinto Explorations rose .13 to .63 on 264,000. Tyee Lake Resources advanced .05 to .45 on 119,500 and Banner Resources remained unchanged at $5.45 on 106,370. Norex Resources rose .20 to $1.40 and Liberty Petroleums gained .50 to $5.30.

Oriana Development gained .12 to .57 on 137,000, Mackenzie Energy advanced .30 to $2.10 on 91,300 and Beach Gold Mines advanced .05 to $1.50 on 83,500. Belmont Resources gained .55 to $3.75 and Northern Lights gained a dime to $1.25.

New York

The market rallied Friday in anticipation of some new inflation-fighting plan, with rumors focusing on such possibilities as restraints on expansion of credit.

But such an announcement was not forthcoming over the weekend, and today traders seemed to step back to wait.

Meanwhile, Wall Street was faced with the likelihood of more increases soon in the prime lending rate, which went to a record 16¾ per cent late last week at several large banks.

There were predictions that the basic rate on blue-chip loans would soon reach 17 per cent, and that it could go still higher before long.

London

The Financial Times index fell 2.7 to 464.4.

Oils were mixed while golds declined.

Canadian stocks firmed.

In case you're wondering

St. Michael's has enrolment of 530

How many private schools are there in Greater Victoria? What are the fees and which is biggest?

The B.C. Federation of Independent Schools Association, representing 207 schools, says Victoria has 17 of Vancouver Island's 29 non-public schools.

Most are church-affiliated and represent many denominations.

But there are 10 non-sectarian independent schools, usually referred to as private schools, in Greater Victoria and southern Vancouver Island.

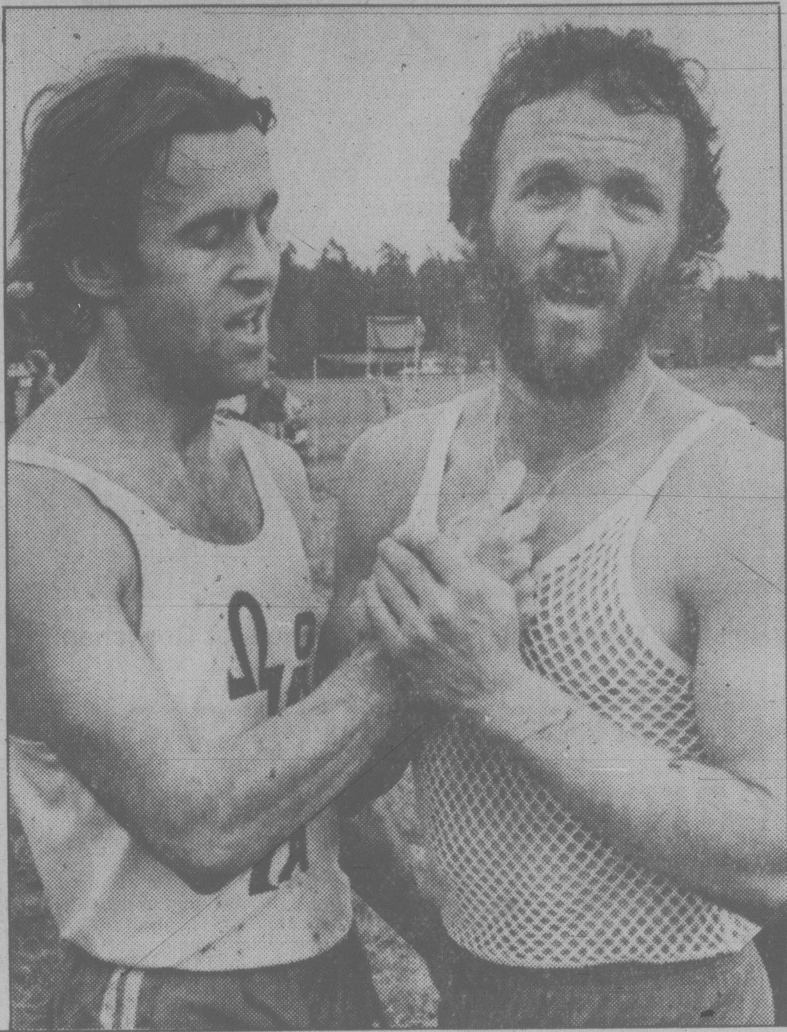
The four in Victoria are, in order of enrolment, St. Michael's University School with 530 boys and girls, including day pupils and boarders, St. Margaret's School with 330 girls and boys, both boarding and day pupils, Norfolk House School with 285 day girls and Glenlyon School for Boys with 220 day pupils.

Then there's Brentwood College at Mill Bay (345 boys and girls, all boarding); Shawnigan Lake School (245 boarding and day boys) and Queen Margaret's School, Duncan (170 day and boarding girls).

Fees range from about $1,200 a year for kindergarten day pupils to as much as $7,000 for senior grade boarders.

For example, Grade 1 at St. Michael's costs $1,700, about half the cost of a typical day pupil at an Ontario private school, where boarders pay up to $8,000 a year.

Ontario leads in most private schools in Canada, followed by B.C. and Quebec.



THEY'RE OFF: An army of runners (top photo) takes off at start of men's open race during 13th annual Basil Parker cross country run Saturday in Central Saanich. Competitors in 13 classes faced a rugged course, traversed by Hagan Creek, and all found the going muddy, wet and exhausting. Among the survivors were Bonnie Hutton (right), junior women's winner with the best time of the day by a female runner, and exhausted pair (left to right, far right photo) Roger Wheat and Bruce (Gunner) Shaw of Prairie Inn Hash House Harriers. Shaw was winner of the 10,000-metre open race. Some runners reaching the creekwere in for a real dousing, like the fellow in the bottom photo. Details and results are on Page 16. View Towers fire fatal to man, 78

A 78-year-old man died late Sunday after receiving third-degree burns to 50 per cent of his body in a fire in his apartment.

Firemen said the blaze in Thomas Boyle's View Towers suite at 1147 Quadra was started by a cigarette in upholstery.

Firefighters say they are concerned over the fact that some of the occupants of the block's 360 suites ignored the alarm bells and remained in the building.

A fire department spokesman said Boyle attempted to put out the fire himself but was forced to retreat to the balcony of his eighth-floor corner apartment.

The alarm was received by the fire department at 8:55 a.m. and Boyle was plucked from the balcony by firemen using a ladder truck.

A fire department official said Boyle was conscious when he was taken to Victoria General Hospital but died at 11:30 p.m.

Firefighters battled the blaze from the ladder truck to the balcony as well as from inside using the building's standpipe system.

The fire was out in 10 minutes.

Damage to the suite was more than $40,000.

Two other fires handled by Victoria firefighters Sunday involved fireplaces.

Damage is estimated at about $1,500 in one blaze at the home of David Payne, 2516 Fernwood.

Strapping alongside the chimney overheated and ignited.

There was $12,000 damage in a roof fire at 589 John, the home of Anctic Gilles.

The fire started in wood adjacent to the chimney and the roof caught fire.

Escapers caught

Guards and RCMP officers from Sooke and Colwood captured two inmates who escaped from the Jordan River Correctional Institute late Sunday and a third man is to appear in court charged with assisting the escape.

A juvenile girl was also picked up for questioning about the unsuccessful breakout.

Victim named

Colwood RCMP have identified the 15-year-old girl struck and killed by a truck in the 3200-block Metchosin Road Friday afternoon as Charlene Wenzel. The Wenzel girl was struck by a pickup truck while walking along Metchosin with a friend.

Mair, RJH deny blame for man's blindness

Health Minister Rafe Mair and Royal Jubilee Hospital officials today denied the hospital was to blame for an elderly man losing his sight.

Mair said he has reviewed an investigation of the case and said it makes clear all major decisions about the patient's surgery were made by the man's physician, Dr. D.P. North, an opthamologist.

The minister said he is not making any judgements about the doctor's actions but suggested the College of Physicians and Surgeons might be interested in examining the files.

Dr. North said the elderly man waited "quietly and patiently for his call from the hospital for more than seven months."

But Mair said, "This is an entirely inaccurate and inflammatory remark."

He said Royal Jubilee first heard from Dr. North on July 26 when he booked surgery for his patient.

"The date preferred by Dr. North was Dec. 6, some 5½ months later, so that is when Jubilee booked the admission for surgery."

The booking was later cancelled and rebooked for Dec. 27.

Mair said Dr. North described the patient as requiring elective surgery — the least urgent of all booking categories.

Jubilee Hospital board chairman Eric Simmons also said Dr. North made bookings for elective surgery.

"The patient didn't lose his sight because of non-admittance to this hospital," Simmons said during a press conference.

The patient could have been in months earlier if North had changed his classification to urgent, he said.

Classified urgent, the patient's wait would have been between six and eight weeks.

North didn't call again until Oct. 9 to book a Jan. 23 surgery date for the other eye, Simmons said.

Mair said: "If the patient were in as desperate condition as Dr. North now retrospectively portrays him, I would have expected him to have called the hospital requesting the booking be changed."

Federal grant may lead to geriatric studies at UVic

By NORMAN GIDNEY

The University of Victoria is seeking a federal grant which could lead to establishment of an institute for geriatric studies.

Economist Rod Dobell of the school of public administration said today UVic initially will ask for funds to carry out three loosely-linked research projects starting in 1981.

The first is demographic modelling — provincial and national population projections, patterns in migration and so on.

"That's our interest — creating the data base, the computer programs to be able to do that kind of work."

The impact of the increasing numbers of aging Canadians on the social security system — pension plans, health insurance, unemployment insurance — is the second general study topic under consideration.

Third is a study of the individual, personal aspects of the aging process.

Questions will include the kind of needs created by an aging population, what programs now deal with the aged and where do they miss the target.

If the university gets grants for these research projects, the second stage would be to tie them together into a co-ordinated study of aging and finally a full-fledged institute.

There's a deadline of May 15 for grant applications to the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council, the successor organization to the Canada [illegible] demic research.

Two years ago it gave $750,000 to the UVic political science department for research on the transition in governments when Social Credit and the NDP traded places in the 1970s.

Last year it handed out $1 million for studies on aging, which the council identified as its number one priority in research spending.

UVic didn't apply in the first round because it was concentrating on a proposal for a geriatric institute.

Dobell said UVic is optimistic about obtaining some money this time since the university has a nursing school and there is talk of some kind of medical school.

Some three dozen professors helped in the initial planning of the application but the actual research projects would probably involve about a dozen faculty in history, economics, sociology, public administration and geography, he said.

A team approach is suggested in their outline with groups studying such topics as the factors which affect demand or need for income support or special services for the aged, evaluation of existing programs, the costs of the commitment to support the aged.
